Operational Risk Assessment Brendon Young, Rodney Coleman, 2010-12-03 Operational risk assessment The Commercial Imperative of a More Forensic and Transparent Approach Brendon Young and Rodney Coleman Brendon Young and Rodney Coleman's book is extremely timely There has never been a greater need for the financial industry to reassess the way it looks at risk They are right to draw attention to the current widespread practices of risk management which have allowed risk to become underpriced across the entire industry Rt Hon John McFall MP Chairman House of Commons Treasury Committee Failure of the financial services sector to properly understand risk was clearly demonstrated by the recent credit crunch In its 2008 Global Stability Report the IMF sharply criticised banks and other financial institutions for the failure of risk management systems resulting in excessive risk taking Financial sector supervision and regulation was also criticised for lagging behind shifts in business models and rapid innovation This book provides investors with a sound understanding of the approaches used to assess the standing of firms and determine their true potential identifying probable losers and potential longer term winners It advocates a more forensic approach towards operational risk management and promotes transparency which is seen as a facilitator of competition and efficiency as well as being a barrier to fraud corruption and financial crime Risk assessment is an integral part of informed decision making influencing strategic positioning and direction It is fundamental to a company's performance and a key differentiator between competing management teams Increasing complexity is resulting in the need for more dynamic responsive approaches to the assessment and management of risk Not all risks can be quantified however it remains incumbent upon management to determine the impact of possible risk events on financial statements and to indicate the level of variation in projected figures To begin the book looks at traditional methods of risk assessment and shows how these have developed into the approaches currently being used It then goes on to consider the more advanced forensic techniques being developed which will undoubtedly increase understanding The authors identify best practice and address issues such as the importance of corporate governance culture and ethics Insurance as a mitigant for operational risk is also considered Quantitative and qualitative risk assessment methodologies covered include Loss data analysis extreme value theory causal analysis including Bayesian Belief Networks control risk self assessment and key indicators scenario analysis and dynamic financial analysis Views of industry insiders from organisations such as Standard Poors Fitch Hermes USS UN PRI Deutsche Bank and Alchemy Partners are presented together with those from experts at the FSA the International Accounting Standards Board IASB and the Financial Reporting Council In addition to investors this book will be of interest to actuaries rating agencies regulators and legislators as well as to the directors and risk managers of financial institutions in both the private and public sectors Students requiring a comprehensive knowledge of operational risk management will also find the book of considerable value

The Regulatory Requirements and Management Process* Elvira Peters,2016-06-03 Project Report from the year 2015 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 2 0 University of Kassel language English abstract During the last twenty years operational risk has gained in importance in the financial sector Although this type of risk is definitely not new but rather one of the oldest it has remained unconsidered for a relatively long time However operational risks have always existed and do exist in the daily business ever since the foundation of every financial institution Considering the increased complexity and global developments in the financial system as well as the recent extremely large losses caused by operational risk this risk type has finally acquired a greater relevance One of the most popular examples for the tremendous losses caused by operational risk is the collapse of the Barings Bank in the year 1995 due to an inadequate control system and serious failures in management and supervisory. Unlike other types of risks, operational risks are very heterogeneous and diversified. The term includes a variety of meanings and range from employee errors, systems failures and frauds up to external events such as fire or floods. Therefore, the former definition of operational risk was a negative one which stated what the term is not, e.g. credit market or liquidity risk; it was the other risks basket. Utz 2006: 52. But this definition has proven to be opaque and less than useful. Carol 2003: 104 and is now obsolete. Since a consistent definition is absolutely necessary for a general framework for managing and controlling operational risks, the Basel Committee provided a more precise definition. It defines the operational risk as the risk of direct or indirect loss resulting from inadequate or failed internal processes, people and systems or from external events. BCBS 2001: 2. This definition includes also the legal risk but not the reputation risk and strategic risk. A lot of industry representatives applied this definition; hence it can now be assumed as the standard one. According to this definition, the operational risk can be divided into two main streams of risk: the external and the internal risk. The internal risk arises inside the institution, whereas the external risk arises outside the institution.

Measuring and Managing Operational Risks in Financial Institutions Christopher Lee Marshall, 2001-01-12. A comprehensive and innovative look at how to protect financial institutions from operational risks. Operational risk is the risk associated with human error, systems failures and inadequate controls and procedures in information systems or internal controls that will result in an unexpected loss. According to a recent survey, about seventy percent of banks consider operational risk as important as market or credit risks. Nearly a quarter of the same banks admit to operation-related losses of more than 1.6 million; many cases are so embarrassing that banks will not actually admit any error on their part. Firms are just beginning to develop their own operational risk management systems and they need guidance on how to do it. This book will help them identify, measure and manage their operational risks. Christopher Marshall, Singapore, is Associate Director of the Center for Financial Engineering at the National University of Singapore. He has written numerous articles in Risk magazine and Harvard Business School cases. Operational Resilience Mike Brookbanks, Pierre Pourquery, 2002. Published in association with IBM. Effective and comprehensive solutions. This book describes how to develop a holistic framework for measuring, controlling, detecting and responding to operational risk in all its manifestations. It provides the reader with a viable route to addressing this increasingly important issue in an effective and comprehensive manner.
