Elementary School Teachers' Mathematics Instructional Decision Making in the Context of District Mandates on Instruction Heather Anne Martin, 2008 In the current educational climate teachers in low performing schools are experiencing pressure from state and district policy makers to raise student performance on state tests Some district administrations have undertaken various measures including implementing numerous and specific mathematics content standards adopting particular curricular packages and requiring teachers to use them as their primary instructional materials and even creating pacing guides with uniform timelines for presenting lessons to students These efforts have had the cumulative effect of urging teachers to stick closely to a standard curriculum in order to raise student test scores Teachers must also interpret and attend to the needs of their students and ideally teach their students to understand mathematical concepts and processes as opposed to narrowly mastering procedural skills It may not always be possible to both follow administrative mandates about instruction and meet student needs and teachers may have to make a compromise between these two objectives In this study I examined how elementary school teachers in a particular accountability pressured school decided to teach mathematics Drawing on multiple interviews and ten classroom observations per teacher I created portraits of the mathematics instructional choices of four second grade teachers including their use of instructional materials such as textbooks I drew on an analytical framework adapted from Stein Grover and Henningsen 1996 to assess various features of the lesson in order to note the interaction between the materials and the teachers decisions about how to use them I developed a lesson signature for each teacher a visual representation of the typical organization of the teacher s lessons and how materials were used within them My findings indicated that the teachers individual goals for their teaching beliefs about their students needs and interpretations of the district s curricular mandates interacted to steer their instructional choices to very different results Two of the teachers dutifully followed the textbook while two essentially disregarded it in favor of other materials Teachers own senses of their autonomy to make curricular decisions and their support for their students autonomy in learning math emerged as important factors I suggest implications for teacher professional development and curricular materials development

Taking Action with Teacher Research Ellen Meyers, Frances O'Connell Rust, 2003 More and more classroom teachers are using action research strategies to tackle basic issues and daily dilemmas everything from designing their own professional development to reshaping instructional practice Through their support of teachers who are eager to take up this work Ellen Meyers and Frances Rust have found that the challenges to the reform of public schools are most likely to surface in three areas resources needed to meet standards conditions of the workplace and status of the teaching profession Their book is a lucid guide for teachers to address these and other problems in classrooms and beyond to ask the right questions and design and implement research to find answers and to use this data to effect change Every chapter contains rich examples of teacher research in action Jane Fung focuses on the conditions of schooling and the status of teachers in an elementary school in downtown Los Angeles Lara Goldstone teaching in New York s Chinatown looks at obstacles to successful communication with the parents of her students In a Lower East Side middle school Matt Wayne confronts the problem of getting appropriate books for struggling eighth grade students Carol Tureski at a high school in Queens finds that lack of access to high interest culturally relevant resources is a significant barrier to facilitating adolescent literacy Janet Price also at a Queens high school shows what can happen when teachers set the agenda for professional development around assessment in their school Natasha Warikoo at a Manhattan high school looks at the impact of class size on her teaching of second language learners in her math class When teachers consider themselves to be researchers not just consumers of research they are exercising leadership And when teachers form networks to share their knowledge they are breaking down obstacles that have thwarted their leadership for so long Action research empowers teachers to do just that to lead reform efforts and provide the remedies needed for all children to succeed The studies in this book are part of the work of the Teachers Network Policy Institute whose mission is to give teachers an active voice in education policy making For more information contact www.teachersnetwork.org All proceeds support the Teachers Network Policy Institute

Teacher Practice Online Désirée H. Pointer-Mace, 2009-04-27 Teachers know how complicated their work is They constantly balance considerations of individual students with those of the group they think about how past events affect today s lessons and they constantly adapt and revise for future lessons But few people ever get to see teachers work in this way The most energizing relational complicated inspiring disheartening parts of teaching remain largely invisible Over nearly a decade at the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching D sir e Pointer Mace worked with dozens of teachers across the country to open their doors by creating multimedia web based representations of teaching practice This book describes how such multimedia representations are envisioned documented created and shared and how others might engage in this process This practical book Examines the cutting edge of electronic media documentation of teaching practice Features cases studies that represent diverse grades cultures and contexts with both novice and veteran teachers Provides clear examples of how multimedia representations of teaching can be used as alternative texts in teacher learning environments Describes the positive outcomes for teachers and learners when teaching is made public Includes screen images of teachers websites as well as classrooms and children participating in projects

Flexible Pacing for Able Learners Neil Daniel, June Cox, 1988 The monograph describes the application of flexible pacing as a means of meeting the educational needs of gifted students in schools throughout the country Flexible pacing is defined as placing students at an appropriate instructional level and allowing them to move forward in the curriculum as they master content and skills Flexible pacing is achieved by such methods as continuous progress compacted course advanced level courses grade skipping early entrance concurrent or dual enrollment and credit by examination An introductory chapter looks at the historical and theoretical context of flexible pacing and gives a brief explanation of the canvassing and survey methods used to obtain data The next two chapters describe flexible pacing programs in 8 elementary and 11 secondary schools Chapter 5 looks at district wide programs for all students or all gifted students and finds six such school systems The next chapter examines cooperative programs between schools colleges or other educational institutions The seventh chapter discusses selected features of flexible pacing including school policy strategies of implementation staff selection development and record keeping A staff development program to prepare teachers for flexible pacing in mathematics is described in the eighth chapter contributed by Kathleen Martin The concluding chapter identifies principles of implementation including capitalizing on what is available initiating a program gradually and winning support The survey form and a sample program description are appended DB Outline of Course of Study Eastern Michigan University.
