The Blue team begins a discussion about how and how much energy they have to work with. They try creating power outlets like the solar and风能 power outlets by connecting multiple components.

Design a wind power outlet that uses the wind to produce energy. (The outlet will be located in the room.) While maintaining everything, follow these below instructions precisely.

After that, the team can choose to add more components like the sun or water power outlets and outlets as they see fit.

When the team is done, they can compare the Blue team to every group's creation to determine the best design.

When every team has completed their design, the teacher will call the winning Blue team, Blue team B, and Blue team C to come up with a detailed description of their outlets. Teacher? You can call them a little bit of Blue.

Although the teacher will not call the other teams, the teacher will tell them to continue their work until the teacher calls them back.

When the teacher calls the Blue team, the teacher will tell them to add more outlets and tell the other power outlets that their outlets are fine but the best will be the one in the group that is creating the outlets.

When the teacher calls the Blue team, the teacher will tell them to add more outlets and tell the other power outlets that their outlets are fine but the best will be the one in the group that is creating the outlets.
