Reconstruction of the Public Sphere in the Socially Mediated Age Kaoru Endo, Satoshi Kurihara, Takashi Kamihigashi, Fujio Toriumi, 2017-10-31 The aim of this book is to establish a basis for resolving the various issues facing modern society by exploring the field of Computational Social Science which fuses the social and natural sciences Today society is threatened by problems concerning the environment population growth hunger and epidemics all of which could lead to the extinction of humankind However attempting to resolve these issues is extremely difficult because of the complex intertwined factors involved and because these issues are not just matters related to nature and the environment but also to society In this book we investigate this aporia of the social sciences with the help of big data which has gained considerable attention in recent years and techniques such as agent based simulation Our aim is to resolve the complex system problems characteristic of the present age In this regard the book focuses on specific issues such as the reconstruction of public character in our social media saturated modern lifestyle the current state of social capital and the resultant social changes

The Psychology and Economics of Happiness Lok Sang Ho, 2013-10-30 Much attention has been given to the economics of everyday life which typically applies economic principles to the analysis of the different choices that people face under different situations Yet there are hardly any books on the economics of life an economics that takes the finite lifespan as the starting point and that looks at how one can maximize the subjective value from life given the constraint of the limited lifespan In this volume Lok Sang Ho suggests that the lack of progress in happiness among developed countries despite significant economic growth is due to a deficit of mental goods rather than a lack of material goods The author stresses the role of culture and mental habits in determining the efficacy of gaining mental goods which includes love a sense of security and autonomy contentment self esteem self acceptance and freedom from anxiety Drawing on empirical research the book explores how to invest work and consume from a whole life perspective arguing that every action consumption investment or work should enhance the total quality of life This overriding concern about life itself is known as love The Psychology and Economics of Happiness uses the analytical framework of economists on a subject studied by positive psychologists drawing both from empirical evidence and from psychological literature It will be of interest to researchers and academics interested in economic and positive psychology as well as those from related fields keen to learn more about living fuller happier lives
