SUPRAHISTORY Erwin Ramdohr Conrads, 2025-02-09 In my long meditations on our past our present and our future I came to the following thought in a surprising and unexpected way If historians of yesteryear divided the historical time of humanity's past into two large temporal portions Prehistory and History and they did so taking as a turning point the invention of writing by human beings for some time now in the year 2025 it seems that we are living a new turning point in which our humble writing and information in general are taking a quantum leap in appearance The time has come for us to name what is happening and that will be the history of man from our present time onwards And after much thought and consultation with Artificial Intelligence this is what I have called SUPRAHISTORY If Prehistory indicates a phase of lack non writing phase and history one of availability writing phase we can recognize there a sequence of advancement of progress that is to say of development Now in our present day we are taking a astronomical leap in which not only will there be availability of writing but there will be hyper availability of creation and storage and not only of graphics but also of sound and images both static and moving Currently all of this can be created edited and archived indefinitely always keeping in mind that technological instruments will be required to achieve this
