A Day-care Guide for Administrators, Teachers, and Parents Richard Ruopp, 1973 The need for day care in the United States is enormous and increasing rapidly Between 4 and 4.5 million preschoolers have mothers who work and only about 2 percent of these children are in child care centers Demand for day care cuts across social and economic lines It may be a means of improving a family's economic status or simply a way of giving a mother the freedom to pursue her own interests This book is based on A Study in Child Care 1970-71 prepared for the Office of Economic Opportunity From an original list of 188 centers the study selected 20 programs representing the wide diversity of groups interested in providing child care These included centers and systems located all around the country on Indian reservations in the inner city in mobile trailers in Appalachia and in the suburbs Sponsors too were diverse including employers unions private corporations federal state and local agencies as well as parents The study interviewed directors teachers support staff children community people and parents Children and teachers were observed in their daily center routines Budgets were carefully recorded with attention to both dollar and in kind revenues and expenditures A panel of child care experts acted as advisors for the study and all final case studies were reviewed by the centers involved Part I of the book describes the people involved in child care and what they do the children the staff directors and boards and parents Part II delineates basic program components education nutrition health and supplemental services and uses examples from the centers the authors felt were handling these aspects in creative or particularly appropriate ways Part III examines operating costs for day care outlines start up activities and their costs and describes a model center serving 50 children Part IV consists of detailed case studies of four of the programs studied a small urban center a large urban home care program a small program for migrant children and a large rural child care system The appendix contains four summary charts of all 20 centers studied This book will be useful to people who are operating or considering operating day care programs to teachers and to parents who are attempting to choose a day care center for their children or evaluate a center their children presently attend As the authors explain Our intent is not to propound hard and fast rules but merely to point out what s working for others and might prove helpful to you
