Erik Canton,Andreas Blom,2004 Financial aid to students in tertiary education can contribute to human capital accumulation through two channels increased enrollment and improved student performance Canton and Blom analyze the quantitative importance of both channels in the context of a student loan program SOFES implemented at private universities in Mexico With regard to the first channel enrollment results from the Mexican household survey indicate that financial support has a strong positive effect on university enrollment Given completion of upper secondary education the probability of entering higher education rises 24 percent The authors use two data sources to investigate the second channel student performance They analyze administrative data provided by SOFES using a regression discontinuity design and survey data enable them to perform a similar analysis using a different control group Empirical results suggest that SOFES recipients show better academic performance than students without a credit from SOFES However the results cannot be interpreted as a purely causal impact of the student loan program since the impacts also could reflect self selection of students Abstract     Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine ,2009     U.S. News & World Report ,2008     Student Lawyer ,2002     The Christian Advocate ,1919     State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania News ,1998 The Proceedings of the State Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania were issued as one number of the News from 1924 1959
