Aerospace Health and Safety: Today and the Future Irina Mordukhovich, Mardi A. Crane-Godreau, Eileen Mcneely, Christopher Scheibler, 2023-11-20 Aviation plays vital roles in commerce defense science and leisure travel Irrespective of the purpose of flight crew and passengers are challenged by exposure to a variety of environmental conditions that can differ widely from work and travel environments on the surface of the Earth With anticipated changes in aviation and space technology new challenges to health and safety of crew and passengers can be expected In this Research Topic we welcome contributions from those whose work and interests are relevant to the health and safety of crew and passengers This includes but is not limited to health and safety professionals FAA examiners corporate medical officers aerospace and occupational physicians physiologists military and scientific team members public health professionals as well as engineers who are tasked with crew and passenger health and safety design projects While 4 1 billion passengers fly on commercial airlines annually and this figure is even higher when taking into account privately owned aircraft and military flight for the most part aviation is safe Passengers do arrive at their destinations with little concern to their own well being and flight is generally well tolerated However older flyers people with diagnosed or undiagnosed preexisting disease and other vulnerable passengers such as young children and pregnant women may be at risk of complications and crew may be at special risk due to the frequency and duration of their many flight related exposures Health and safety issues for crew and passengers include but are not limited to potentially severe circadian rhythm disruption potential health effects of low level cosmic ionizing radiation exposure at altitude reduced oxygen delivery and tissue hypoxia at cabin pressurization cabin air contamination by engine gases toxic materials used in uniforms and some cabin seat materials occupational noise pesticides used for cabin disinsection lack of adequate crew rest on layovers or between flights cardiovascular demands of flight and effects of flight related dehydration the current absence of screening protocols especially in the context of a rising number of elderly and vulnerable flyers lack of healthy nutrition at airports and in flight availability of food and hydration as well as adequate cabin temperature under delay conditions effects of alcohol use on flight related physiological and behavioral health risks anxiety and psychological distress associated with air travel the effects of long haul or ultra long haul flights on thromboembolic events as well as smoking cessation efforts and related psychological outcomes job related stress and harassment among crew Cosmic ionizing and non ionizing radiation exposure have drawn attention as have historic exposures of crew and passengers to second hand cigarette smoke The threat of political and interpersonal violence and altercations involving aviation cannot be overlooked On board medical emergencies run a wide gamut and the capacity to respond becomes more problematic as the duration of flights becomes longer or in the case of flight over oceans and the poles In addition in flight and post flight embolisms and myocardial infarctions are more prevalent than might be expected We hence encourage manuscripts that address in flight medical response including the capabilities on different types of aircraft on potential interventions by crew and medical volunteers In addition aviation as a vector for the carriage of disease is a significant concern to public health and security of populations world wide and we welcome submissions regarding infectious disease epidemiology and medicine as it relates to air travel Insects and occasional unplanned travel by birds and rodents can present additional public health concerns We are approaching an era where space travel may soon be increasingly common Future flights for near Earth orbit by leisure travelers and as well as travel to the moon and Mars raise a host of new questions with health and safety implications What are the proposed health and safety accommodations going to be Who will be allowed to travel Perhaps the most interesting question is who will make the rules

Aerospace Health and Safety: Today and the Future, volume II Christopher Scheibler, Mardi A. Crane-Godreau, Eileen Mcneely, Russell Tontz, Philip Parks, 2025-11-12 This Research Topic follows on from the editors previously successful volume I Aviation plays vital roles in commerce defense science and leisure travel Irrespective of the purpose of the flight crew and passengers are exposed to a variety of environmental conditions that can differ widely from work and travel on the surface of the Earth Novel changes in the aerospace industry have brought new challenges to safeguarding the health of crew and passengers with additional exposure to the space environment Civilian spaceflights by Blue Origin Virgin Galactic and SpaceX highlight the direction of the space industry towards commercialization of space with future space travel being dominated by average civilians to include people with underlying health conditions and disabilities The aviation industry is expected to soon return to pre COVID era levels where over 4 billion passengers fly annually Aviation is safe for most travelers however older flyers people with the preexisting disease and other vulnerable passengers such as young children and pregnant women may be at risk of complications and crew may be at special risk due to cumulative flight related exposures over a career Health concerns include but are not limited to circadian rhythm disruption low level cosmic ionizing radiation reduced oxygen delivery and tissue hypoxia cabin air contamination by engine gases toxic materials used in uniforms and aircraft cabin components occupational noise and vibration pesticides used for cabin disinfection inadequate crew rest cardiovascular demands and effects of flight related dehydration lack of traveler health screening protocols effects of alcohol use in flight psychological stress associated with air travel effects of long haul flights on thromboembolic events and smoking cessation efforts job related stress and harassment among crew On board medical emergencies run a wide gamut and the capacity to respond becomes more problematic as the duration of flights increases or in the case of travel over oceans and the poles Medical events related to flight may present in the days following exposure and therefore we encourage manuscripts that address in flight medical response as well as events in the post flight period In addition aviation as a vector for the carriage of disease is a significant concern to public health as demonstrated in the SARS CoV 2 pandemic outbreak and we welcome submissions regarding infectious disease epidemiology and medicine as it relates to air travel There exist many identified concerns of space travel with unknown impacts on the average traveler s health including but not limited to space motion sickness space related psychological effects acceleration forces and microgravity cardiovascular responses and fluid shifts bone and muscle loss and spaceflight associated neuro ocular syndrome These exposures are in addition to general aviation related factors discussed previously that space travelers will also encounter Future anticipated flights including suborbital orbital and lunar travel and habitation raise a host of new questions regarding the health and safety of crew and passengers What will be the occupational requirements for crew What will be the accommodations and functional requirements for passengers Who will be allowed to travel Perhaps the most interesting question is who will make the rules In this Research Topic we welcome contributions from those whose work and interests are relevant to the health and safety of aerospace crew and passengers This includes but is not limited to health and safety professionals FAA examiners corporate medical officers aerospace and occupational physicians physiologists military and scientific team members public health professionals as well as engineers who are tasked with crew and passenger design projects All submissions should be framed within the standards of high level academic rigor Hypotheses should be testable We welcome the submission of research studies reviews opinion pieces and book reviews that are relevant to this topic Topic editor Philip Parks founded and is employed by H21 All other Topic Editors declare no competing interests with regards to the Research Topic subject
