Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion Cheryl Vince Whitman, Carmen E. Aldinger, 2009-04-29 A growing body of research identifies strong links between children's health, social and educational outcomes. It also notes the reciprocal benefits of access to quality education on individual and family health status. In response to these findings the World Health Organization developed the concept of the Health Promoting School (HPS) a living catalyst for healthy lives and for positive changes that students can take home and into the community. Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion provides readers with a theoretical and research base needed to understand the methods used in communities all over the world to put this captivating concept in place. Case examples from over two dozen countries representing urban and rural areas in developing and developed nations outline the strategies taken to implement HPS programs in individual schools, municipalities and nations. For each program case study authors explain the problems they tackled, their motivation and supports to respond creatively and the barriers they faced. In the cases authors describe the capacities and infrastructure they created and mechanisms for cooperation as well as the personnel, financial and time requirements involved. Case studies were drawn from the following regions: Africa, The Americas, Europe, Eastern Mediterranean, South and Southeast Asia, Western Pacific. Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion offers a world of insights, ideas and guidance to those addressing social determinants of health at this formative stage including education and health policy makers, professionals and administrators and researchers in national governments, universities, local schools, community, non governmental organizations and civil society. The material provides interesting and useful information to those dedicated to these issues within WHO FRESH Partners and other United Nations agencies. It is also an instructive text for graduate students in public health, education, allied health professions and social sciences.
