Modeling Engine Spray And Combustion Processes Heat And Mass Transfer:

Modeling Engine Spray and Combustion Processes Gunnar Stiesch, 2013-06-29 The utilization of mathematical models to numerically describe the performance of internal combustion engines is of great significance in the development of new and improved engines Today such simulation models can already be viewed as standard tools and their importance is likely to increase further as available computer power is expected to increase and the predictive quality of the models is constantly enhanced This book describes and discusses the most widely used mathematical models for in cylinder spray and combustion processes which are the most important subprocesses affecting engine fuel consumption and pollutant emissions The relevant thermodynamic fluid dynamic and chemical principles are summarized and then the application of these principles to the in cylinder processes is explained Different modeling approaches for the each subprocesses are compared and discussed with respect to the governing model assumptions and simplifications Conclusions are drawn as to which model approach is appropriate for a specific type of problem in the development process of an engine Hence this book may serve both as a graduate level textbook for combustion engineering students and as a reference for professionals employed in the field of combustion engine modeling The research necessary for this book was carried out during my employment as a postdoctoral scientist at the Institute of Technical Combustion ITV at the University of Hannover Germany and at the Engine Research Center ERC at the University of Wisconsin Madison USA

Droplets and Sprays: Simple Models of Complex Processes Sergei S. Sazhin, 2022-06-28 This book acts as a guide to simple models that describe some of the complex fluid dynamics heat mass transfer and combustion processes in droplets and sprays Attention is focused mainly on the use of classical hydrodynamics and a combination of kinetic and hydrodynamic models to analyse the heating and evaporation of mono and multi component droplets The models were developed for cases when small and large numbers of components are present in droplets Some of these models are used for the prediction of time to puffing micro explosion of composite water fuel droplets processes that are widely used in combustion devices to stimulate disintegration of relatively large droplets into smaller ones The predictions of numerical codes based on these models are validated against experimental results where possible In most of the models droplets are assumed to be spherical some preliminary results of the generalisation of these models to the case of non spherical droplets approximating them as spheroids are presented

Urea-SCR Technology for deNOx After Treatment of Diesel Exhausts Isabella Nova, Enrico Tronconi, 2014-03-14 Urea SCR Technology for deNOx After Treatment of Diesel Exhausts presents a complete overview of the selective catalytic reduction of NOx by ammonia urea The book starts with an illustration of the technology in the framework of the current context legislation market system configurations covers the fundamental aspects of the SCR process catalysts chemistry mechanism kinetics and analyzes its application to useful topics such as modeling of full scale monolith catalysts control aspects ammonia injections systems and integration with other devices for combined removal of pollutants

Heat and Mass Transfer T. Nejat Veziroğlu, 1994

Droplets and Sprays Sergei Sazhin, 2014-05-19 Providing a clear and systematic description of droplets and spray dynamic models this book maximises reader insight into the underlying physics of the processes involved outlines the development of new physical and mathematical models and broadens understanding of interactions between the complex physical processes which take place in sprays Complementing approaches based on the direct application of computational fluid dynamics CFD Droplets and Sprays treats both theoretical and practical aspects of internal combustion engine process such as the direct injection of liquid fuel subcritical heating and evaporation Including case studies that illustrate the approaches relevance to automotive applications it is also anticipated that the described models can find use in other areas such as in medicine and environmental science

Modeling and Computer Simulation of Internal Combustion Engines, 1999 Applied Mechanics Reviews, 1993 Mixture Formation in Internal Combustion Engines

Carsten Baumgarten, 2006-09-28 A systematic control of mixture formation with modern high pressure injection systems enables us to achieve considerable improvements of the combustion process in terms of reduced fuel consumption and engine out raw emissions However because of the growing number of free parameters due to more flexible injection systems variable valve trains the application of different combustion concepts within different regions of the engine map etc the prediction of spray and mixture formation becomes increasingly complex For this reason the optimization of the in cylinder processes using 3D computational fluid dynamics CFD becomes increasingly important In these CFD codes the detailed modeling of spray and mixture formation is a prerequisite for the correct calculation of the subsequent processes like ignition combustion and formation of emissions Although such simulation tools can be viewed as standard tools today the predictive quality of the sub models is constantly enhanced by a more accurate and detailed modeling of the relevant processes and by the inclusion of new important mechanisms and effects that come along with the development of new injection systems and have not been considered so far In this book the most widely used mathematical models for the simulation of spray and mixture formation in 3D CFD calculations are described and discussed In order to give the reader an introduction into the complex processes the book starts with a description of the fundamental mechanisms and categories of fuel injection spray breakup and mixture formation in internal combustion engines
