Children Who Fail at School But Succeed at Life Mark Katz, 2016-04-05 Understanding resiliency and student success by studying people who succumbed to risk but later triumphed A number of people who failed in school currently enjoy meaningful and successful lives They include though they are by no means limited to those with attention and executive function challenges learning disabilities learning and behavioral challenges arising out of traumatic events in their lives and even those impacted by all of the above Up until recently little attention was paid to successful people who did poorly in school Why One reason might be that many of us doubted that it was actually possible After all many loving parents and caring teachers spent countless hours trying their hardest to help these failing children turn things around in school sometimes with little or nothing to show for it If these children continued to struggle and fail in school with all this help and support it was understandable to assume that they would not succeed in the real world decades later without it So what did we miss Why were we so wrong about them And perhaps most importantly how can their life experiences help educators and parents understand what schools can do better to support students who are struggling today In his groundbreaking new book Mark Katz draws on research findings in clinical and social psychology cognitive neuroscience education and other fields of study as well as stories of successful individuals who overcame years of school failure to answer these and other questions In the process he shows how children who fail at school but succeed at life can give teachers and schools counselors and health care professionals parents and guardians even those whose childhood struggles have persisted into their adult years new remedies for combatting learning behavioral and emotional challenges reducing juvenile crime school dropout and substance abuse improving our health and well being and preventing medical problems later in life

Carnegie Perspectives Lloyd Bond,2007 The writer examines a variety of reasons why test performance may not always be a valid measure of a person s competence or potential Citing that a sizable percentage of students perform well in their schoolwork but poorly on standardized multiple choice tests Bond defines and discusses four candidates as source factors for the phenomenon 1 Test Anxiety characterized by anticipatory feelings of dread and nervousness before a test and a disorienting anxiety during the actual test that in extreme forms can literally paralyze the student 2 Lack of Test Sophistication the ability to use characteristics and formats of the test and the test taking situation to obtain a higher score 3 Automaticity the ability to recall quickly relevant facts procedures and routines and to apply these without thinking too much about it and 4 Test Bias the simple fact that standardized tests may contain material that many students have not had an opportunity to learn The lesson concludes the writer is that those who make decisions about people on the basis of standardized test performance must keep an eye out for cases where students who should excel do not so that poor test performance should does not trump a person s actual academic or occupational accomplishments
