Nice Apes View Human Evolution:

An Ape's View of Human Evolution Peter Andrews, 2016-01-07 Our closest living relatives are the chimpanzee and bonobo. We share many characteristics with them but our lineages diverged millions of years ago. Who in fact was our last common ancestor? Bringing together ecology, evolution, genetics, anatomy, and geology, this book provides a new perspective on human evolution. What can fossil apes tell us about the origins of human evolution? Did the last common ancestor of apes and humans live in trees or on the ground? What did it eat and how did it survive in a world full of large predators? Did it look anything like living apes? Andrews addresses these questions and more to reconstruct the common ancestor and its habitat. Synthesising thirty-five years of work on both ancient environments and fossil and modern ape anatomy, this book provides unique new insights into the evolutionary processes that led to the origins of the human lineage. Human Ancestry from a Genetical

Perception and the Senses Evan L. Brown, Kenneth Deffenbacher, 1979 Provides excellent coverage in a single volume. A very good book. I cannot think of a better choice for the undergraduate instructor than this rich and scholarly volume. American Journal of Psychology. It draws upon the world of living things to bring out an evolutionary theme. The concept of evolution gives a background for the study of ecological principles. Ape Man Rod Caird, 1994 Explores the story of our evolution and of the people who have devoted their lives to discovering the truth about our origins. The First People Henri de Saint-Blanquat, 1986 Traces the evolution of human beings from the creation of the universe to the advent of the Neanderthals. Also discusses how archaeologists use available evidence to reconstruct the past. The Freethinker, 1890 Science John Michels (Journalist), 2006 A weekly record of scientific progress. The aim of the conference was to address key issues in the development of intelligence and cognitive capacities through the course of human evolution. It did this by invoking theoretical perspectives from a broad range of relevant disciplines: psychology, ethology, and primate behaviour, neurology, child development, artificial intelligence, and of course archaeology. The volume contains the papers presented at the conference, revised and updated in the light of post-conference discussions. It provides the most comprehensive review available of current approaches to modelling the evolution of intelligence and cognition in early human populations. Hunter, Phillip Whitten, 1976 The Archaeological Journal ,1989 Scientific American ,2003 Developmental Dynamics in Humans and Other Primates Jos Verhulst, 2003 Belgian scientist Jos Verhulst presents the most thorough research to date elaborating an evolutionary theory first set forth by Dutch anatomist Louis Bolk in the early twentieth century This theory is based on the proposition that dynamic principles inherent in the development of individual organisms are also at work in animal evolution as a whole A chimpanzee fetus for example is strikingly similar to its human counterpart its cranium is rounded its face flat and its hair is restricted to its head As it develops however the chimp diverges from its original humanlike form assuming specialized apelike features In this detailed comparative study of numerous organs Verhulst shows that unlike the other primates humans retain their original juvenile form Standing Darwin on his head he concludes that humans did not descend from apes rather apes evolved by diverging from a humanlike prototype He also shows that our human tendency to retain our fetal form fetalization or retardation is complemented by further development hypermorphosis of such organs as the legs heels forebrain and larynx through which we attain our eminently human capacities of upright posture thinking and speech In the last chapter Verhulst sketches a broad view of how retardation and hypermorphosis have worked together in animal evolution He speculates for example that vertebrates evolved from invertebrates when ancient sea squirts a form of tunicate a marine invertebrate retained their larval characteristics and developed them further as they evolved into fish Sea squirt larvae are free swimming and resemble tadpoles Their brain includes a light sensitive eyespot and they have a rudimentary spinal cord In their adult stage however they are sessile filter feeders with neither nerve cord nor eyes Verhulst postulates that primitive tunicates such as the sea squirt retained their larval characteristics through retardation and evolved through hypermorphosis into fish the first vertebrates Following in a tradition as old as Darwinism he proposes that from the very beginning of animal evolution these dynamics have led progressively toward the emergence of the human form In this view the gradually emerging human prototype is seen as the driving force and central trunk of the evolutionary tree as the wellspring from which the animal world has sprung McGraw-Hill Concise Encyclopedia of Science & Technology ,2005 The most widely used science reference of its kind More than 7 000 concise articles covering more than 90 disciplines of science and technology all in one volume
