Dear [Mr./Ms./Mx.] [Hiring Manager's Last Name],

The first paragraph should contain a self-introduction. Write who you are, where your expertise lies, where you found the job posting (or who referred you), and why you want to apply.

The second paragraph should respond directly to the job description. Describe how your relevant experiences, skills, and abilities help you meet the company's needs. To make that easier, you can (and should) literally include words and phrases from the job description here.

- You can also include a bulleted list of your accomplishments
- Make sure you quantify (add numbers to) these bullet points
- A cover letter with numbers is 100% better than one without

To go the extra mile, research the company and try to find out what they are doing — and why — given the current state of their industry. Explain how you can fit into that framework, and help push the company forward and achieve any goals you suspect they have.

The final paragraph is the "call to action" portion of your cover letter. Inform the hiring manager that you'd love to get interviewed. Give them your contact information. Tell them you'll reach out again next week if you don't hear back. Thank them for their time.

Sincerely,

Thomas Beasley

The Official Guide to U.S. Law Schools ,1996     A Crash Course In Cover Letters: Adapting An Old School Tool For Your Digital Job Search J. Maureen Henderson,2012-06-11 Today job seekers need to build active networking based methods into their job searches They have to have a game plan and it's got to be crafty bold and strategic Hiding behind a computer and machine gunning resumes into blind mailboxes over and over again is the recipe for a super long frustrating job search Cover letters we hear are redundant a waste of time for the applicant and the hiring manager no longer useful in the age of online applications and no one knows how to write them anyway This is just plain wrong Done right cover letters provide an additional means by which you make your case for hiring to the employer Far from being job search relics they continue to provide value both to you and to the hiring manager in the application process And yes they are still considered essential documents by a majority of employers As reported by the Washington Post 53% of employers surveyed give the edge to applicants who include cover letters over those who do not and 91% claim that a well written cover letter improved the odds of a less qualified candidate reaching the interview stage A cover letter can truly make or break your application In this book you'll find out Whether to leave that graduate degree off your resume and what you can fake What you never should when describing your skill set How to find a job with social media savvy How to make sure social media isn't working against you How to stand out in the slush pile     US Black Engineer & IT ,1991     New Perspectives on Microsoft Office 2003, First Course, Premium Edition
