Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion Cheryl Vince Whitman, Carmen E. Aldinger, 2009-04-29 A growing body of research identifies strong links between children's health, social and educational outcomes. It also notes the reciprocal benefits of access to quality education on individual and family health status. In response to these findings, the World Health Organization developed the concept of the Health Promoting School (HPS), a living catalyst for healthy lives and for positive changes that students can take home and into the community. Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion provides readers with a theoretical and research base needed to understand the methods used in communities all over the world to put this captivating concept in place. Case examples from over two dozen countries representing urban and rural areas in developing and developed nations outline the strategies taken to implement HPS programs in individual schools, municipalities and nations. For each program case study, authors explain the problems they tackled, their motivation and supports to respond creatively, and the barriers they faced. In the cases, authors describe the capacities and infrastructure they created and mechanisms for cooperation, as well as the personnel, financial and time requirements involved. Case studies were drawn from the following regions: Africa, The Americas, Europe, Eastern Mediterranean, South and Southeast Asia, Western Pacific. Case Studies in Global School Health Promotion offers a world of insights, ideas and guidance to those addressing social determinants of health at this formative stage, including education and health policy makers, professionals and administrators, and researchers in national governments, universities, local schools, community, non-governmental organizations and civil society. The material provides interesting and useful information to those dedicated to these issues within WHO FRESH Partners and other United Nations agencies. It is also an instructive text for graduate students in public health, education, allied health professions and social sciences.

Nutrition: A Health Promotion Approach Third Edition Geoffrey P. Webb, Geoffrey P. Webb, 2007-12-28 The third edition of this highly regarded introductory textbook continues to cover all aspects of nutrition, including nutritional epidemiology, social aspects of nutrition, the science of food as a source of energy and essential nutrients, and the microbiological safety of food and food processing. Its focus is on nutrition in industrialized nations where nutritional deficiencies in the traditional sense are less of an issue, but the roles of diet in causing or preventing chronic disease and maintaining good life-long health and well-being are gaining ever-increasing attention. The importance of good health promotion is therefore a guiding principle throughout the book, supported by a section devoted to health promotion theory. Nutrition: A Health Promotion Approach is the book of choice for first-year nutrition students looking for a readable but comprehensive introduction to the field, dietitians undertaking the nutrition components of their course, and other students undertaking nutrition modules as part of a broader scientific or professional course such as food science or catering.

Nutrition Promotion Tony Worsley, 2020-07-25. Affluenza in developed societies is damaging our health, leading to increasing rates of obesity, diabetes and other metabolic disorders. Growth in individual food consumption is also threatening ecological sustainability. More than ever before, dietitians, nutritionists and other health professionals need to promote healthy eating to the general public. Nutrition Promotion sets nutrition education firmly in a public health context, showing that nutrition promotion is most effective when targeted to particular population groups. Tony Worsley presents the history, theory and methods of nutrition promotion and provides practical applications in a variety of settings and age groups. Drawing on international theory and research and with international case studies and examples, Nutrition Promotion is an essential text for students and professionals in nutrition studies and dietetics, health promotion and public health programs. Finally, we have a book on nutrition promotion from a public health perspective that integrates food systems, theoretical health behavior change models, evaluation methods, applications across settings and sectors and provides practical examples from different countries. Professor Mary Story, School of Public Health, University of Minnesota. A timely and considered book. It follows in that great tradition of public health nutrition by providing a basis for analysis but takes it a step further by helping the reader make the transition to action. Martin Caraher, Reader in Food and Health Policy, City University, London.
