Growth in Aerospace Composites Aniello Riccio,2015-01-07 This book presents novel methods for the simulation of damage evolution in aerospace composites that will assist in predicting damage onset and growth and thus foster less conservative designs which realize the promised economic benefits of composite materials The presented integrated numerical experimental methodologies are capable of taking into account the presence of damage and its evolution in composite structures from the early phases of the design conceptual design through to the detailed finite element method analysis and verification phase The book is based on the GARTEUR Research Project AG 32 which ran from 2007 to 2012 and documents the main results of that project In addition the state of the art in European projects on damage evolution in composites is reviewed While the high specific strength and stiffness of composite materials make them suitable for aerospace structures their sensitivity to damage means that designing with composites is a challenging task The new approaches described here will prove invaluable in meeting that challenge

Tree Biotechnology Kishan Gopal Ramawat, Jean-Michel Mérillon, M. R. Ahuja, 2014-04-01

Forest trees cover 30% of the earth's land surface, providing renewable fuel, wood, timber, shelter, fruits, leaves, bark, roots, and are a source of medicinal products. In addition to benefits such as carbon sequestration, water shed protection and habitat for 1/3 of terrestrial species. However, the genetic analysis and breeding of trees has lagged behind that of crop plants. Therefore, systematic conservation, sustainable improvement and pragmatic utilization of trees are global priorities. This book provides comprehensive and up-to-date information about tree characterization, biological understanding and improvement through biotechnological and molecular tools.
