Robinson, 2009-01-20 Since its inception in 1968 software engineering has undergone numerous changes In the early years software development was organized using the waterfall model where the focus of requirements engineering was on a frozen requirements document which formed the basis of the subsequent design and implementation process Since then a lot has changed software has to be developed faster in larger and distributed teams for pervasive as well as large scale applications with more flexibility and with ongoing maintenance and quick release cycles What do these ongoing developments and changes imply for the future of requirements engineering and software design Now is the time to rethink the role of requirements and design for software intensive systems in transportation life sciences banking e government and other areas Past assumptions need to be questioned research and education need to be rethought This book is based on the Design Requirements Workshop held June 3-6 2007 in Cleveland OH USA where leading researchers met to assess the current state of affairs and define new directions The papers included were carefully reviewed and selected to give an overview of the current state of the art as well as an outlook on probable future challenges and priorities After a general introduction to the workshop and the related NSF funded project the contributions are organized in topical sections on fundamental concepts of design evolution and the fluidity of design quality and value based requirements requirements intertwining and adapting requirements practices in different domains

Notethattherealchallengehereisnohowtodesignthesystemtotakeap particular aspect into account there is significant design know how in industry on this and it is often captured in the form of design patterns Taking into account more than one aspect can be a little harder but many large scale successful projects in industry provide some evidence that engineers know how different concerns should be handled The real challenge is reducing the effort that the engineer has to expend when grappling with many inter dependent concerns For example in a product line context when an engineer wants to replace a variant of an aspect used in a system she should be able to do this cheaply quickly and safely Manually weaving every aspect is not an option Unlike many models used in the sciences models in software and in linguistics have the same nature as the things they model In software this provides an opportunity to automatically derive software from its model that is to automate the weaving process This requires models to be formal and the weaving process be described as a program i.e an executable meta model manipulating models to produce a detailed design The detailed design produced by the weaving process can ultimately be transformed to code or at least test suites
