Evolution and the Psychology of Thinking David E. Over,2004-06-02

The field of evolutionary cognitive psychology has stimulated considerable interest and debate among cognitive psychologists and those working in related areas In this collection leading experts evaluate the status of this new field providing a critical analysis of its most controversial hypotheses These hypotheses have far reaching implications for cognition including a modular view of the mind which rejects in its extreme form any general learning or reasoning abilities Some evolutionary psychologists have also proposed content dependent accounts of conditional reasoning and probability judgements which in turn have significant and equally controversial implications about the nature of human reasoning and decision making The contributions range from those that are highly critical of the hypotheses to those that support and develop them The result is a uniquely balanced cutting edge evaluation of the field that will be of interest to psychologists philosophers and those in related subjects who wish to find out what evolutionary considerations can and cannot tell us about the human mind
