

Microeconomics (Quickstudy: Business)

OVERVIEW

Microeconomics is the study of how individuals and firms make decisions to allocate their resources. It focuses on how markets function, how prices are determined, and how goods and services are produced and distributed.

MARKET EQUILIBRIUM

Market equilibrium occurs when the quantity supplied equals the quantity demanded. This is the point where the price is determined by the intersection of supply and demand curves.

PRICE CHANGES

Price changes occur when there is a shift in either the supply or demand curve. These shifts are caused by changes in factors of production, technology, or consumer preferences.

INCOME CHANGES

Income changes occur when there is a change in the price of a good or service. This can lead to shifts in the demand curve, as consumers buy more or less of a good based on its price.

INTERACTION OF MARKETS

The interaction of markets occurs when the price of one good affects the price of another. This is known as cross elasticity of demand.

NON-MONETARY FORCES

Non-monetary forces include government regulation, taxes, and subsidies. These can affect the supply and demand curves, leading to changes in market equilibrium.

SUPPLY & DEMAND

Supply and demand are the fundamental concepts of microeconomics. They describe the relationship between the price of a good and the quantity supplied and demanded.

PRICE ELASTICITY

Price elasticity measures the responsiveness of demand to a change in price. It is calculated as the percentage change in quantity demanded divided by the percentage change in price.

INCOME ELASTICITY

Income elasticity measures the responsiveness of demand to a change in income. It is calculated as the percentage change in quantity demanded divided by the percentage change in income.

PRICE INFLATION

Price inflation occurs when the general level of prices rises over time. It is measured by the percentage increase in the price level.

INFLATION
