Renewable Energy and AI for Sustainable Development Sailesh Iyer, Anand Nayyar, Mohd Naved, Fadi

Al-Turjman, 2023-07-17 Electronic device usage has increased considerably in the past two decades. System configurations are continuously requiring upgrades; existing systems often become obsolete in a matter of 2-3 years. Green computing is the complete effective management of design, manufacture, use, and disposal involving as little environmental impact as possible. This book intends to explore new and innovative ways of conserving energy, effective e-waste management, and renewable energy sources to harness and nurture a sustainable eco-friendly environment. This book highlights innovative principles and practices using effective e-waste management and disposal. Explores artificial intelligence-based sustainable models. Discovers alternative sources and mechanisms for minimizing environmental hazards. Highlights successful case studies in alternative sources of energy. Presents solid illustrations, mathematical equations, as well as practical in the field applications. Serves as a one-stop reference guide to stakeholders in the domain of green computing, e-waste management, renewable energy alternatives, green transformational leadership, including theory, concepts, practice, and case studies. Explores cutting-edge technologies like internet of energy and artificial intelligence, especially the role of machine learning and deep learning in renewable energy and creating a sustainable ecosystem. Explores futuristic trends in renewable energy. This book aims to address the increasing interest in reducing the environmental impact of energy as well as its further development and will act as a useful reference for engineers, architects, and technicians interested in and working with energy systems, scientists, and engineers in developing countries, industries, manufacturers, inventors, universities, researchers, and interested consultants to explain the foundation to advanced concepts and research trends in the domain of renewable energy and sustainable computing. The content coverage of the book is organized in the form of 11 clear and thorough chapters, providing a comprehensive view of the global renewable energy scenario as well as how science and technology can play a vital role in renewable energy.

Prepare Operational Budgets Sharon Rumble, 2018-09-01. Prepare Operational Budgets is for students of the Certificate IV in Accounting and has been specifically developed to meet the requirements of the unit of competency Prepare Operational Budgets. Content is presented in bite-sized segments to allow learners to access individual parts at their own pace and detailed mapping to learning outcomes is provided throughout the text. A complete tool for learning and assessment for both students and instructors, the text includes an assessment tool as an appendix which has been developed and mapped to meet all essential requirements of assessment. An end-of-chapter developing case study task provides students with practical tasks and activities that build on the concepts covered in previous chapters, enabling a scaffolded approach to the application and holistic understanding of preparing operational budgets using a realistic case study business scenario.

Evaluation of Applied Energy Research and Development at DOE (Phase Two) National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Board on Energy and Environmental Systems, Committee on Prospective Benefits of DOE's Energy Efficiency and Fossil Energy R&D Programs (Phase Two), 2007-08-17

Since its inception in 1977 from an amalgam of federal authorities the U S Department of Energy DOE has administered numerous programs aimed at developing applied energy technologies. In recent years federal oversight of public expenditures has emphasized the integration of performance and budgeting. Notably the Government Performance and Results Act GPRA was passed in 1993 in response to questions about the value and effectiveness of federal programs. GPRA and other mandates have led agencies to develop indicators of program performance and program outcomes. The development of indicators has been watched with keen interest by Congress which has requested of the National Research Council NRC a series of reports using quantitative indicators to evaluate the effectiveness of applied energy research and development R D. The first such report took a retrospective view of the first 3 years of DOE R D programs on fossil energy and energy efficiency. The report found that DOE sponsored research had netted large commercial successes such as advanced refrigerator compressors, electronic lighting ballasts and emission control technology for flue gas desulfurization. However some programs were judged to be costly failures in which large R D expenditures did not result in a commercial energy technology. A follow up NRC committee was assigned the task of adapting the methodology to the assessment of the future payoff of continuing programs. Evaluating the outcome of R D expenditures requires an analysis of program costs and benefits. Doing so is not a trivial matter. First the analysis of costs and benefits must reflect the full range of public benefits that are envisioned accounting for environmental and energy security impacts as well as economic effects. Second the analysis must consider how likely the research is to succeed and how valuable the research will be if successful. Finally the analysis must consider what might happen if the government did not support the project. Would some non DOE entity undertake it or an equivalent activity that would produce some or all of the benefits of government involvement? This second report continues to investigate the development and use of R D outcome indicators and applies the benefits evaluation methodology to six DOE R D activities. It provides further definition for the development of indicators for environmental and security benefits and refines the evaluation process based on its experience with the six DOE R D case studies.
