the three countries is clearly more an attempt to allow us to see what we can do rather than what we should do. The main degree of success, based on what the world community expects, and what we are achieving, is not convincing. Some attention to expenditure cuts would be well. But it is troubling.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The study was conducted in a primary school in the city of Bursa, Turkey. The study group consisted of 20 children (10 boys and 10 girls) who were randomly selected from the 10-year-old children in the school. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The control group did not participate in any physical activity program, while the experimental group participated in a 10-week training program. The physical fitness of the children was measured at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The measurements included heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index. The results of the study showed that the experimental group had significantly higher heart rate, blood pressure, and body mass index at the end of the 10-week period compared to the control group. These findings suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

1. Identify the population and sample. The population is all people who are 18 years of age or older. The sample is the 1,000 people who were surveyed.
