Assessment in Music Education Timothy S. Brophy, 2008      Goals and Self-assessment in the Middle School Learner Steven Rex Oare, 2007

With the intent of improving the teaching of practice strategies to young musicians the purpose of this multiple case study was to discover how students use goal setting and self assessment within their personal practice sessions and how these self regulative components affect strategy choice and motivation The specific questions were as follows a What goal setting and self assessment comments do novice adolescent instrumental musicians make during instrumental practice b What goal setting and self assessment strategies do novice adolescent instrumental musicians use during instrumental practice c Are there differences in practice strategies found among students when they are deliberately involved in goal setting or self assessment compared to times when they are not setting goals or self assessment and d What strategies do students use to address various technical aspects of performance This study entailed the observation of middle school aged instrumental music students N 6 during their individual practice Two students were in eighth grade and four were in seventh grade The students played flute N 2 clarinet N 1 saxophone N 2 and trombone N 1 Data was collected via field notes videotape analysis of three practice sessions per student along with concurrent and retrospective verbal reports focus group interviews before and after the observation cycle commenced and concluded and an interview with the students band director Data were analyzed within cases and across cases for emergent themes Four themes were found to describe a cyclical practice process in which students moved from motivation to goal setting to strategy use to assessment and back to motivation Each stage of the cycle seemed to drive other stages Students with learning goal orientations seemed to practice more effectively than students with performance or time orientations Student goals tended to lack specificity which negatively influenced student choice of practice strategy and self assessment Three external factors were found that had a strong influence on the practice cycle including teachers musical aural image and learning development These three factors wove their way through all four stages of the practice cycle      The American Music Teacher ,1999      The Oxford Handbook of Assessment Policy and Practice in Music Education, Volume 1 Timothy S. Brophy, 2019-01-02

In the music classroom instructors who hope to receive aid are required to provide data on their classroom programs Due to the lack of reliable valid large scale assessments of student achievement in music however music educators in schools that accept funds face a considerable challenge in finding a way to measure student learning in their classrooms From Australia to Taiwan to the Netherlands music teachers experience similar struggles in the quest for a definitive assessment resource that can be used by both music educators and researchers In this two volume Handbook contributors from across the globe come together to provide an authority on the assessment measurement and evaluation of student learning in music The Handbook s first volume emphasizes international and theoretical perspectives on music education assessment in the major world regions This volume also looks at technical aspects of measurement in music and outlines situations where theoretical foundations can be applied to the development of tests in music The Handbook s second volume offers a series of practical and US focused approaches to music education assessment Chapters address assessment in different types of US classrooms how to assess specific skills or requirements and how assessment can be used in tertiary and music teacher education classrooms Together both volumes of The Oxford Handbook of Assessment in Music Education pave the way forward for music educators and researchers in the field
