

MONOLOGUES FOR GIRLS

One Sunday Afternoon

by James Hagan

[This lovely, if somewhat sentimental play, written in 1930, is about young love in a small Midwestern town. Amy, a romantic young girl, has a crush on the town bully and she's describing it to her friend Virginia.]

AMY

I don't know. Maybe it was love, I don't know, but— Well, when I was very young— of course, that's a long time ago, you understand. It was in school. There was this boy. I don't know—he never looked at me and I never...Virginia, did you ever have a feeling in your heart—Something that you feel is going to happen and it doesn't— that's the way my heart was— (she touches her heart) It wasn't love, I know that— (pause) He never even noticed me. I could have been a stick in the mud as far as he was concerned. Virginia, this boy always seemed lonely somehow. Everybody had it in for him, even the teachers—they called him bully—but I know he wasn't. I saw him do a lot of good things—when the big boys picked on the smaller ones, he helped the little fellows out. I know he had a lot of good in him—good, that nobody else could see—that's why my heart longs for him.

Little Women

based on the Novel by Luisa May Alcott adapted for the stage by Lorraine Cohen

[The story of the trials and tribulations of the March family. The lady like Meg, the tomboyish Jo, the vain Amy, and the gentle Beth, growing up in the nineteenth century poor but happy under the watchful eye of their mother. Their father is away fighting in the Civil War. The following monologue is taken from the first scene in the play. Jo, a spirited and tomboyish girl in her early- mid-teens, laments the fact that she cannot live the way she chooses because it is not proper for a girl. It is not that Jo wants to be a boy. It is more that she wants a different life than the one available to girls at this time. She feels trapped and useless. Meg has just said to Jo: "Remember that you are a young lady." Jo tries to convince Meg that it is not right to expect ladylike behavior from her.]

JO

I ain't a lady! And if turning up my hair makes me one, I'll wear it in two tails till I'm twenty. I hate to think I've got to grow up and be Miss March, and wear long gowns, and look as prim as China Aster. It's bad enough to be a girl, anyway, when I like boys' games and work, and manners. I can't get over my disappointment in not being a boy, and it's worse now than ever, for I'm dying to go and fight with Papa, and I can only stay at home and knit like a poky old woman.
