Citizen Science Janis L. Dickinson, Richard E. Bonney, Jr., 2012-04-07 Citizen science enlists members of the public to make and record useful observations such as counting birds in their backyards watching for the first budding leaf in spring or measuring local snowfall The large numbers of volunteers who participate in projects such as Project FeederWatch or Project BudBurst collect valuable research data which when pooled together create an enormous body of scientific data on a vast geographic scale In return such projects aim to increase participants connections to science place and nature while supporting science literacy and environmental stewardship In Citizen Science experts from a variety of disciplines including scientists and education specialists working at the Cornell Lab of Ornithology where many large citizen science programs use birds as proxies for biodiversity share their experiences of creating and implementing successful citizen science projects primarily those that use massive data sets gathered by citizen scientists to better understand the impact of environmental change This first and foundational book for this developing field of inquiry addresses basic aspects of how to conduct citizen science projects including goal setting program design and evaluation as well as the nuances of creating a robust digital infrastructure and recruiting a large participant base through communications and marketing An overview of the types of research approaches and techniques demonstrates how to make use of large data sets arising from citizen science projects A final section focuses on citizen science's impacts and its broad connections to understanding the human dimensions and educational aspects of participation Citizen Science teaches teams of program developers and researchers how to cross the bridge from success at public engagement to using citizen science data to understand patterns and trends or to test hypotheses about how ecological processes respond to change at large geographic scales Intended as a resource for a broad audience of experts and practitioners in natural sciences information science and social sciences this book can be used to better understand how to improve existing programs develop new ones and make better use of the data resources that have accumulated from citizen science efforts Its focus on harnessing the impact of crowdsourcing for scientific and educational endeavors is applicable to a wide range of fields especially those that touch on the importance of massive collaboration aimed at understanding and conserving what we can of the natural world

Incredible Science Experiments to Amaze your Friends Thomas Canavan, 2019-10-18 Hold on to your lab goggles From a homemade lava lamp to a potato powered battery this book is bursting with fantastic experiments to impress your friends and bring science to life The fun projects have easy to follow instructions and clear explanations of why each one works Science has never been so much fun

Resources for Teaching Middle School Science Smithsonian Institution, National Academy of Engineering, National Science Resources Center of the National Academy of Sciences, Institute of Medicine, 1998-04-30 With age appropriate inquiry centered curriculum materials and sound teaching practices middle school science can capture the interest and energy of adolescent students and expand their understanding of the world around them Resources for Teaching Middle School Science developed by the National Science Resources Center NSRC is a valuable tool for identifying and selecting effective science curriculum materials that will engage students in grades 6 through 8. The volume describes more than 400 curriculum titles that are aligned with the National Science Education Standards. This completely new guide follows on the success of Resources for Teaching Elementary School Science the first in the NSRC series of annotated guides to hands on inquiry centered curriculum materials and other resources for science teachers. The curriculum materials in the new guide are grouped in five chapters by scientific area: Physical Science, Life Science, Environmental Science, Earth and Space Science, and Multidisciplinary and Applied Science. They are also grouped by type: core materials, supplementary units, and science activity books. Each annotation of curriculum material includes a recommended grade level, a description of the activities involved, and of what students can be expected to learn, a list of accompanying materials, a reading level, and ordering information. The curriculum materials included in this book were selected by panels of teachers and scientists using evaluation criteria developed for the guide. The criteria reflect and incorporate goals and principles of the National Science Education Standards. The annotations designate the specific content standards on which these curriculum pieces focus. In addition to the curriculum chapters, the guide contains six chapters of diverse resources that are directly relevant to middle school science. Among these is a chapter on educational software and multimedia programs, chapters on books about science and teaching, directories and guides to science trade books and periodicals for teachers and students. Another section features institutional resources. One chapter lists about 600 science centers, museums, and zoos where teachers can take middle school students for interactive science experiences. Another chapter describes nearly 140 professional associations and U.S. government agencies that offer resources and assistance. Authoritative, extensive, and thoroughly indexed, and the only guide of its kind, Resources for Teaching Middle School Science will be the most used book on the shelf for science teachers, school administrators, teacher trainers, science curriculum specialists, advocates of hands on science teaching, and concerned parents.
