THE SOCIAL NETWORKING GIANT

Read the text below and then answer the comprehension questions.

Facebook, founded by Mark Zuckerberg, will be college-bound in 2010. The social networking site is the most influential and widely used social networking platform in the United States, of course. Other websites like YouTube and Twitter, while interesting, aren't as influential or as focused on the right kind of users.

On the upside, Facebook is a platform that can used to increase positivity, increase social bonds, and increase positive things like positive, happy, and fun, in everyone's life. Facebook's slogan is "Friends First," so it's definitely a platform of connected relationships and people's lives. Facebook's slogan is a statement of the connectedness of the platform.

One of Facebook's defining features is its simplicity of connecting with people. You either like them or you don't. The likes can be used to keep in touch with people, share interests, and increase or decrease the connections. This allows for better relationships with friends and better communication and sharing of interests or interests, which interests are often ones that are within each other.

Other than just Facebook, you should also know that Facebook's main competitor is MySpace. MySpace is a website that's a predecessor of the "old" website. It's a website that's designed to be a platform for people to post, while Facebook is the "new" social network. It's better for groups, partnerships, and communities, the creation of messages, or just plain fun. In 2010, Facebook extended its social media reach to the mobile media and messaging space.

Facebook has also proved significant in education, including schools and universities in which learning platforms that teach students to better understand their platforms based on user data, interests, and hobbies. This has made it a valuable tool. The Facebook platform allows that target audience and gives that particular platform.

Through its simplicity and positive attitude, Facebook has become a platform for many new challenges. Companies, schools, parents, and families, and other aspects of education, are all platform issues concerned immediately about what's on the platform. Facebook has taken steps to address these, and are by communicating, through policies, and changing mechanisms, try to combat education.

Additionally, Facebook has taken a platform for social media political movements. From the Arab Spring, to the Black Lives Matter movement, it has proved to be a unifying outlet for social media activism, often serving as a platform for organizing and creating education.

Facebook continues to become a source of news for people around the world. In fact, because of just the platform's functionality, there's been political, economic, and business movements, while the influence and impact can easily turn international, or even just an ongoing challenge related to privacy, security, and responsible, but fair responsibilities. Facebook's popularity reflects the social media platform's influence on communities, which are engaged in global discussions and questions about the future of social communication.
