In the 1850s, it was estimated that over 30,000 children were homeless and roaming the busy streets of New York City. Charles Brace saw a need for the children to have homes of their own. He founded the Children's Aid Society. Brace theorized that these children would have a better chance at becoming contributing members of society if they were raised by God-fearing farm families. The Orphan Train Movement started in 1853 and continued into the early 1900s. Orphan Train by Christina Baker Kline follows Niamh, pronounced Neev, who lived with her family in New York until her father and brothers are killed in a fire, and her mother is sent to a mental hospital.
