Neuroimmunology Research Perspectives Lilian M. Johansson, 2007. Neuroimmunology is a rapidly growing branch of biomedical science that studies of all aspects of the interactions between the immune system and nervous system. It deals with among other things the physiological functioning of the neuroimmune system in states of both health and disease, malfunctions of the neuroimmune system in disorders, autoimmune diseases, hypersensitivities, immune deficiency, the physical, chemical and physiological characteristics of the components of the neuroimmune system in vitro, in situ and in vivo. Despite the brain's status as an immune privileged site, an extensive bi-directional communication takes place between the nervous and the immune system in both health and disease. Immune cells and neuroimmune molecules such as cytokines, chemokines and growth factors modulate brain function through multiple signalling pathways throughout the lifespan. Immunological, physiological and psychological stressors engage cytokines and other immune molecules as mediators of interactions with neuroendocrine neuropeptide and neurotransmitter systems For example brain cytokine levels increase following stress exposure while treatments designed to alleviate stress reverse this effect This book presents leading research from around the globe McGraw-Hill's NPTE (National Physical Therapy Examination) Mark
