This book presents us with an assessment of the economic implications of the TRIPs agreement for developing countries focusing on market related costs benefits as well as direct costs stemming from the implementation of each discipline. It also explores the role international organizations can play in terms of assistance. Detailed results of case studies carried out to envelope countries of different regions different levels of economic technological development are also included.

Promoting access to medical technologies and innovation, 2020-08-31 The revised study records the numerous significant developments that we have seen since 2013. These include efforts made towards achieving universal health coverage challenges posed by antimicrobial resistance the changing disease burden and new global disease threats. The study reviews public and private sector innovation models as well as the repercussions of an increasingly diverse medical technologies industry and the rise of innovative and production capacity in developing countries. It draws practical lessons from experiences regarding how public health IP trade and competition rules all interact with each other in the broader context of the human rights dimension of health and the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs. And it provides insights on measures to promote innovation and access to medical technologies noting the growing network of free trade agreements and the importance that trade plays for access to medical technologies.

Development, Trade, and the WTO Bernard M. Hoekman, Aaditya Mattoo, Philip English, 2002 Publisher's description: Developing countries are increasingly confronted with the need to address trade policy related issues in international agreements most prominently the World Trade Organization WTO. New WTO negotiations on a broad range of subjects were launched in November 2001. Determining whether and how international trade agreements can support economic development is a major challenge. Stakeholders in developing countries must be informed on the issues and understand how their interests can be pursued through international cooperation. This handbook offers guidance on the design of trade policy reform surveys key disciplines and the functioning of the World Trade Organization WTO and discusses numerous issues and options that confront developing countries in using international cooperation to improve domestic policy and obtain access to export markets. Many of the issues discussed are also relevant in the context of regional integration agreements. Separate sections of the handbook summarize what constitutes sound trade policy the major aspects of the WTO from a development perspective policy issues in the area of merchandise trade and the liberalization of international transactions in services protection of intellectual property rights and economic development new regulatory
