Negotiating Freer Trade Ian M. Drummond, Norman Hillmer, 2006-01-01 On November 17 1938 Great Britain the United States and Canada after four years of discussion and manoeuvre signed two wide ranging and interlocking trade agreements A few large elements dominated the talks The Americans wanted to breach the walls of the British imperial preferential tariff system The British were anxious to retain markets and political support in the British dominions and the Baltic while protecting their domestic agriculture and improving political relations with the United States Canada whose acquiescence and co operation were necessitated by the pre existing network of trade agreements hoped to win new export markets to retain old ones and to achieve international political tranquility through economic means Although the negotiations began with a mixture of lofty and ignoble motives in the end the latter predominated The authors have drawn on archival and statistical materials in all three countries to provide a clear and detailed account of the economic context of the mid 1930s the process of negotiations the issues and the political and economic significance both then and now of the final agreements Their work is a valuable case study of the problems that face any country that tries to negotiate freer trade It is therefore full of contemporary resonance and relevance and will be of interest to students of and specialists in modern history European British and North American international relations and international economic policy How to Design, Negotiate, and Implement a Free Trade Agreement in Asia Asian Development Bank. Negotiating Free-trade Agreements Walter Goode,2009 Negotiating a Preferential Trading Agreement S. K. Jayasuriya,Donald MacLaren,Gary Bryan Magee,2009-01-01 Draws on both theory and evaluations of several major Preferential trading arrangements PTAs to discuss the constraints to achieving liberalisation in PTAs and key problems facing negotiators trying to achieve the best outcomes within given political economy constraints such as choice of rules of origin and dispute settlement procedures North American Free Trade Gary Clyde Hufbauer,Jeffrey J. Farrer,Cobden Club (London, England),1882 Free Trade Versus Fair Trade Thomas Henry Farrer,1885 A North American Free Trade Agreement Michael Hart,Centre for Trade Policy and Law,Institute for Research on Public Policy,1990 This document discusses the challenge from Mexico the North American trade regime North American trade and investment patterns and issues and options for the future It also examines what is involved in a tripartite agreement Negotiating Free Trade Philippe Aghion,Pol Antràs,Elhanan Helpman,2004 We develop a dynamic bargaining model in which a leading country endogenously decides whether to sequentially negotiate free trade agreements with subsets of countries or engage in simultaneous multilateral bargaining with all countries at once We show how the structure of coalition externalities shapes the choice between sequential and multilateral bargaining and we identify circumstances in which the grand coalition is the equilibrium outcome leading to worldwide free trade A model of international trade is then used to illustrate equilibrium outcomes and how they depend on the structure of trade and protection Global free trade is not achieved when the political economy motive for protection is sufficiently large Furthermore the model generates both building bloc and stumbling bloc effects of preferential trade agreements In particular we describe an equilibrium in which global free trade is attained only when preferential trade agreements are permitted to form a building bloc effect and an equilibrium in which global free trade is attained only when preferential trade agreements are forbidden a stumbling bloc effect The analysis identifies conditions under which each of these outcomes emerges NBER website House of Commons Debates, Official Report Canada.
