Environmental Management in Development Michael E. Colby, 1990 In the past quarter century environmental management has increasingly become a concern of governments More recently the traditional split between developers and conservationists has begun to break down Conceptions of what is economically and technologically practical ecologically necessary and politically feasible are rapidly changing This report discusses the implications of five paradigms of environmental management in development The author notes that the remedial legalistic approach of environmental management is breaking down Instead interest in the more economically integrated approach of resource management has recently taken hold Several interdependent forces indicate that improving the economic management of pollution and resources may be a necessary but insufficient measure to create the conditions for sustainable development The perception of tradeoffs between development and environmental quality persists in the present debate but its necessity is greatly exaggerated according to this paper Finally it is noted that paradigms may be impervious to evidence and institutions and societies too difficult to change Whether when and how these issues are resolved may be modern civilization s most significant test

Globalization and Development Volume III Shigeru Thomas Otsubo,2015-10-05 Globalization and Development is a cross national study on the interstate dispersion of the impacts on growth inequality and poverty that international economic integration provides to the economies of the developing countries In order to present the Leading Issues in Development with Globalization in a balanced manner to identify differences and commonalities among Country Experiences in development with globalization and to introduce diversified development paradigms with forward looking discussions In Search of a New Development Paradigm for the post MDGs era this publication consists of three volumes and four main parts Volume III Part IV presents the diversified development paradigms such as the GNH Bhutan the sufficiency economy Thailand the reform and opening up paradigm China the African and Latin American paradigms and the Islamic development paradigm The Concluding Chapter presents the evolution of development paradigms in the global development cooperation community after World War II and then offers a glimpse into new development paradigms for the post MDG era This book intends to serve as a unique and comprehensive guide for those in the international development community on the subjects of diversified development paradigms paths under globalization and other challenges in the post MDG era

Strategic Information and Developments Volume 1 Strategic Information and Developments      Conflicting Paradigms in the Economics of Developing Nations Wilfred L. David,1986-08-18      New Regional Development Paradigms:

Globalization and the new regional development Asfaw Kumssa,T. G. McGee,2001 The era of globalization is creating profound changes in global relationships changes that are manifest at international regional national and sub national levels making traditional regional development policy obsolete and irrelevant Traditional policy needs to be redefined and reconstructed so it can capture and articulate emerging regional trends and issues The first of four volumes based mainly on Global Forum on Regional Development Policy organized by the United Nations Centre for Regional Development in Nagoya Japan this book presents a broad theoretical and trend analysis of globalization and its effects on the theory and practice of regional development The book lays out the major components that merit consideration if there is to be new regional planning in this millennium While contributors to the volume do not agree on the effects of globalization on economic growth there is a consensus in the volume that globalization presents a challenge to conventional development theories The challenge for regional planners is to examine the impact and implications of recent structural changes on regional development planning and come up with viable and pragmatic regional development strategies This volume begins to meet that challenge by laying out the major components that merit consideration The following volumes will present detailed case studies of current regional planning practices focusing largely on developing countries Rural Economic Developments
