Target--intensity Timothy Herzog, Kevin A. Baumert, Jonathan Pershing, 2006 An analysis of GHG Intensity targets underlying indicators rationales real world applications and implementation issues Greenhouse gas intensity targets are policies that specify emissions reductions relative to productivity or economic output for instance tons CO2 million dollars GDP By contrast absolute emissions targets specify reductions measured in metric tons relative only to a historical baseline This report looks specifically at intensity targets and explores their underlying indicators rationales real world applications and implementation issues It finds that although intensity targets are often dismissed as being environmentally lax or deceptive they nonetheless could be useful policy instruments when properly used for furthering significant and real commitments to reducing greenhouse gases Reports of the United States Commissioners to the Paris Universal
