My Generation John Downton Hazlett, 1998 John Hazlett's engaging study of writers from the 1960s demonstrates the ways in which the idea of the generation has affected autobiographical writing in this century. Autobiographers from the sixties claim to speak on behalf of all members of their generation. However, each writer presents a unique political and personal agenda. Consuming Autobiographies Claire Boyle, 2017-12-02 Since 1975 French literary writing has been marked by an autobiographical turn which has seen authors increasingly often tap into the vein of what the French term écriture de soi. This coincides paradoxically with the death of autobiography as these authors self consciously distance themselves and their writings from conventional autobiography, founding a nouvelle autobiographie where the very possibility of autobiographical expression is questioned. In the first book length study in English to address this phenomenon, Claire Boyle sheds a new light on this hostility toward autobiography through a series of ground breaking studies of estrangement in autobiographical works by major post war authors Nathalie Sarraute, Georges Perec, Jean Genet and Hélène Cixous. She identifies autobiography as a site of conflict between writer and reader as authors struggle to assert the unknowability of their identity in the face of a readership resolutely desiring privileged knowledge. Autobiography emerges as a deeply troubling genre for authors with the reader as an antagonistic consumer of the autobiographical self. The Art and Science of Trauma and the Autobiographical Meg Jensen, 2019-01-04 This book examines posttraumatic autobiographical projects, elucidating the complex relationship between the science of trauma and how that idea is understood across various scientific disciplines and the rhetorical strategies of fragmentation, dissociation, reticence and repetitive troping widely used the representation of traumatic experience. From autobiographical fictions to prison poems from witness testimony to autobiography and from testimonio to war memorials, otherwise dissimilar projects speak of past suffering through a limited and even predictable discourse in search of healing. Drawing on approaches from literary, human rights and cultural studies that highlight relations between trauma, language, meaning and selfhood and the latest research on the science of trauma from the fields of clinical, behavioral and evolutionary psychology and neuroscience, I read such autobiographical projects not as symptoms but as complex interrogative negotiations of trauma and its aftermath, commemorative and performative narratives navigating aesthetic, biological, cultural, linguistic and emotional pressure and inspiration. Auto/biography Studies, 2001

Encyclopedia of Life Writing Margaretta Jolly, 2013-12-04 First published in 2001, Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an Informa company. What America Read Gordon Hutner, 2009-11-05 Despite the vigorous study of modern American fiction today's readers are only familiar with a partial shelf of a vast library. Gordon Hutner describes the distorted canonized history of the twentieth century American novel as a record of modern classics insufficiently appreciated in their day but recuperated by scholars in order to shape the grand tradition of Hemingway, Fitzgerald and Faulkner. In presenting literary history this way, Hutner argues, scholars have forgotten a rich treasury of realist novels that recount the story of the American middle class's confrontation with modernity. Reading these novels now offers an extraordinary opportunity to witness debates about what kind of nation America would become and what place its newly dominant middle class would have and Hutner suggests should also lead us to wonder how our own contemporary novels will be remembered.

SAGE Biographical Research John Goodwin, 2012-06-25. Biographical research may take a range of forms and may vary in its application and approach but has the unified and coherent aim to give voice to individuals. The central concern of this collection is to assemble articles from sociology, social psychology, education, health, criminology, social gerontology, epidemiology, management and organizational research that illustrate the full range of debates, methods and techniques that can be combined under the heading biographical research. Volume One Biographical Research: Starting Points, Debates and Approaches explores the different biographical methods currently used while locating these within the history of social science methods. Volume Two Biographical Interviews, Oral Histories and Life Narratives focuses on the more established interview based biographical research methods and considers the analytical strategies used for interview based biographical research. Volume Three Forms of Life: Writing, Letters, Diaries and Auto-Biography considers the value of data contained within letters, diaries and auto-biography and illustrates how this data has been analyzed to reveal biographies and their social context. Volume Four Other Documents of Life: Photographs, Cyber Documents and Ephemera focuses on the other human documents and objects like photographs, cyber documents, emails, blogs, social networking sites, webpages and other ephemera such as official documents that are used extensively in biographical research.

Generations Judith Burnett, 2016-04-15. Generations: The Time Machine in Theory and Practice challenges the fragmented and diverse use of the concept of generation commonly found in the social sciences. It approaches the concept in a manner that stretches the sociological imagination away from its orientation toward the present by building the concept of the passage of time into our understanding of the social. It proposes an innovative and exciting view of the field of generations lifting it out from life course and cohort analysis and reconstituting the area with fresh and dynamic ways of seeing. With its unique intellectually innovative and sustained critical study of generational work, Generations will appeal to scholars across a range of social sciences and humanities and will be of particular interest to social theorists and anthropologists as well as sociologists of social history, consumption, identity and culture.
