MIDAS TOUCH

FIND THE ALLUSION

King Midas was a king whom, when he received the golden touch, turned every object he touched into gold. Little did he know that this would be his undoing. His soon discovered that even touching food or water turned it into gold, making him unable to eat or drink. King Midas begged Olympian gods to withdraw the blessing of his golden touch, and he did. Today, it is believed that there is "Midas touch," whereupon certain individuals are successful in almost anything they do. True story: King Midas had the potential which you will...

ALLUSIONS IN MYTHOLOGY

PANDORA

FIND THE ALLUSION

Pandora, wife to Prometheus, who made everything she wanted. She was given a box and warned not to open it. However, Pandora was curious and opened it anyway. When she opened the box, she released pain and suffering into the world. Pandora, when she saw "opening Pandora's box," was scared, saying something that could be considered bad or caused problems. Pandora's story is a reminder that being curious is not always good. Just because we want to see something does not mean we should do it without thinking about what could happen first.

Nationalist Myths and Ethnic Identities Natividad Gutierrez, 2015-11 This timely study examines the processes by which modern states are created within multiethnic societies. How are national identities forged from countries made up of peoples with different and often conflicting cultures, languages and histories? How successful is this process? What is lost and gained from the emergence of national identities? Natividad Gutiérrez examines the development of the modern Mexican state to address these difficult questions. She describes how Mexican national identity has been and is being created and evaluates the effectiveness of that process of state building. Her investigation is distinguished by a critical consideration of cross-cultural theories of nationalism and the illuminating use of a broad range of data from Mexican culture and history including interviews with contemporary indigenous intellectuals and students, an analysis of public school textbooks and information gathered from indigenous organizations. Gutiérrez argues that the modern Mexican state is buttressed by pervasive nationalist myths of foundation, descent and heroism. These myths are expressed and reinforced through the manipulation of symbols, public education and political discourse, downplaying separate ethnic identities and work together to articulate an overriding nationalist ideology. The ideology girding the Mexican state has not been entirely successful, however. This study reveals that indigenous intellectuals and students are troubled by the relationship between their nationalist and ethnic identities and are increasingly questioning official policies of integration.
