Nevogenesis Ashfaq A. Marghoob,2012-10-13 The Abtropfung theory that nevi develop through the migration of nevus cells from the epidermis to the dermis prevailed for almost a century until the Hochsteigerung theory postulated the reverse pattern of migration Most recently however new insights gained from epidemiology cross sectional and longitudinal studies of nevi dermoscopy and confocal microscopy and cellular and molecular studies have brought into question both of these theories This book provides a comprehensive guide to current knowledge about nevogenesis by presenting these latest advances and in addition discusses issues yet to be resolved It will assist practicing physicians in effectively managing patients with a variety of nevi and will also be of great value to researchers in the field Importantly since nevi are associated with an increased risk of melanoma understanding nevogenesis may help to unravel some of the mysteries of melanomagenesis

Melanocytic Tumors of the Skin David E. Elder, George Francis Murphy, 2010 In surgical pathology practice distinguishing malignant from benign melanocytic lesions represents one of the major problem areas. Failure to diagnose a malignant melanoma can have catastrophic results but separating melanomas from their simulants is often difficult and over diagnosis of melanoma is also inappropriate. This edition presents a comprehensive account of benign and malignant melanocytic lesions. The benign lesions encompass the major simulants of melanoma. In addition some of them such as dysplastic nevi have significance as markers of individuals at increased risk for the development of melanoma. It has become ever more apparent especially with the recent advent of molecular classification that melanoma is not one disease and that prognosis in melanoma can vary considerably from lesions that present minimal risk to dangerous malignancies at opposite ends of a spectrum. The details of therapy for these lesions are very different and are determined for the most part by their diagnostic and prognostic features as judged by microscopy. This edition explains in detail the use of attributes for microstaging and for prediction of prognosis in melanoma including discussion of the latest AJCC staging system. More importantly however it provides a richly illustrated roadmap for diagnosis of the entire spectrum of melanocytic tumours. Discussion of the lesions is firmly grounded in their clinical significance with detailed descriptions of clinical features often accompanied by clinical images. Lesions in general are illustrated in multiple microscopic images ranging from scanning magnification to high power. Cytologic as well as architectural features are clearly delineated. Pathophysiology, epidemiology and molecular attributes are also discussed. This work will serve as a comprehensive text for learning on the part of trainees and also as an invaluable diagnostic reference for more experienced diagnosticians in daily practice.

Giant Cafu00e9-au-lait Macule, Plexiform Neurofibroma and Multiple Melanocytic Nevi in a Patient with Mosaic Neurofibromatosis Type 1 Caused by Biallelic NF1 Microdeletions masae Okura, 2017 Mosaic neurofibromatosis type 1 mNF1 caused by postzygotic NF1 alterations is characterized by localized or generalized NF1 related lesions such as cafu00e9 au lait macules CMs and plexiform neurofibroma PNF. A giant CM GCM is sometimes seen in patients with NF1 but coexistence of GCM and melanocytic nevi is very rare. Here we report a case of mNF1 with peculiar manifestations a GCM with melanocytic nevi and PNF. For genetic analyses exome sequencing RT PCR sequencing multiplex ligation dependent probe amplification MLPA TaqMan copy number assay were performed. The patient was an 8 year old girl with a GCM that covered one third of her trunk and associated with multiple melanocytic nevi and PNF. The patient had no other NF1 related lesions except for five small CMs. Neither exome sequencing of the blood and PNF nor RT PCR sequencing of the blood detected NF1 mutations. MLPA detected no NF1 aberrations in the blood but did two NF1 microdeletions in the PNF. complete loss of one allele and an intragenic deletion affecting exons 25-30. Furthermore to explore mechanisms of nevus development nevus cells collected by microdissection were analyzed. MLPA and TaqMan copy number assay detected NF1 deletions similar to those found in PNF. Exome sequencing of the nevi detected no mutations related to nevogenesis. In conclusion the patient was given a diagnosis of mNF1 caused by biallelic NF1 deletions. The deletions might be related to the nevus development but it was unknown whether unidentified genetic aberrations were also responsible.
