New Directions in Anthropology and Environment Carole L. Crumley, 2002-05-09 Carole L. Crumley has brought together top scholars from across anthropology in a benchmark volume that displays the range of exciting new work on the complex relationship between humans and the environment. Continually pursuing anthropology's persistent claim that both the physical and the mental world matter, these environmental scholars proceed from the holistic assumption that the physical world and human societies are always inextricably linked. As they incorporate diverse forms of knowledge, their work reaches beyond anthropology to bridge the sciences, social sciences, and the humanities, and to forge working relationships with non-academic communities and professionals. Theoretical issues such as the cultural dimensions of context, knowledge, and power are articulated alongside practical discussions of building partnerships, research methods, and ethics, and strategies for implementing policy. New Directions in Environment and Anthropology will be important for all scholars and non-academics interested in the relation between our species and its biotic and built environments. It is also designed for classroom use in and beyond anthropology, and students will be greatly assisted by suggested reading lists for their further exploration of general concepts and specific research. Sustainable Communities and Green Lifestyles Tendai Chitewere, 2017-08-09 Sustainable communities raise questions about the compatibility of capitalism and environmentalism and how we can green our way of life in a capitalist economy that values short term production and consumption over long term conservation and simple living If capitalism and its drive towards consumption has produced social and environmental degradation is it the best medium to identify solutions Sustainable Communities and Green Lifestyles examines one ecovillage as it attempts to create a sense of community while reducing its impact on the natural environment Through extensive participant observation the book demonstrates how ecovillages are immersed within a larger discourse of class race and lifestyle choices highlighting the inseparability of environmental sustainability and social justice Sustainable communities are confronted by the contradictions of green consumption and must address social inequality or risk focusing inward on personal green consumerism creating mere green havens for the few who can afford to live in them This book cautious of redirecting environmentalist efforts away from structural solutions and onto personal environmentalism offers a critical perspective on the challenges of an emerging green lifestyle This book offers a critical perspective on the direction of US environmentalism and contributes to debates in environmental studies anthropology and urban planning
