Weiner, 1997-12-11 Genetic DNA immunization represents a novel approach to vaccine and immune therapeutic development The direct injection of nucleic acid expression cassettes into a living host results in a limited number of its cells becoming factories for production of the introduced gene products This host inappropriate gene expression has important immunological consequences resulting in the specific immune activation of the host against the gene delivered antigen The recent demonstration by a number of laboratories that the induced immune responses are functional in experimental models against both specific infectious diseases and cancers is likely to have dramatic consequences for the development of a new generation of experimental
