Murillo Jr., Frances Contreras, Eligio Martinez Jr., Jacqueline E. Arroyo-Romano, 2024-12-02 This book focuses on the impact of COVID 19 on Latino a e x students families and communities across the educational continuum to better understand the challenges faced by them The COVID 19 pandemic has revealed the gross inequities that exist for Latino students with respect to access to quality technology highly qualified and culturally competent teachers bilingual or multilingual information for parents and printed materials and support for students and their parents as they move to online formats This book documents the multifaceted impact on Latino students and their families as they attempted to navigate educational spaces It offers important insights into interventions and responsive policy to ensure Latino students are afforded equitable solutions and educational opportunities institutions and systems by focusing on the following 1 How are Latino students parents and communities responding to the demands of education while balancing the adverse effect of COVID 19 on their families and community 2 How are IHEs responding to the needs of their diverse students Are they providing broader supports to their first generation low income or immigrant students 3 What role does education policy have in ensuring broader Latinx access and opportunity and ultimately impacting a rebound strategy at the local state and national level As Latino students are more likely to be first generation students or the children of immigrants in many states it is critical for public education systems to provide academic infrastructure that is asset based culturally and resource responsive and committed to equity This unique publication which first appeared as a special issue of the Journal of Latinos and Education provides an important account of the varied experiences of Latino students at all levels across the educational continuum during the COVID 19 pandemic

Covid-19 and Risk Society Across the MENA Region Larbi Sadiki, Layla Saleh, 2022-11-17 The impact of the COVID 19 pandemic at the interlocking levels of politics economy and society have been different across regions states and societies In the case of the Middle East and North Africa which was already in the throes of intense tumult following the onset of the 2011 Arab Spring COVID s blows have on the one hand followed the trajectory of some global patterns while at the same time playing out in regionally specific ways Based on empirical country level analysis this volume brings together an international team of contributors seeking to untangle how COVID 19 unfolds across the MENA There is special reference to issues of self governance and democracy and the enormous challenges heightened by the pandemic in many Arab settings inequality human indignity and resurgent authoritarianism The analyses are framed through Ulrich Beck s famous concept of risk society that pinpointed the negative consequences of modernity and its unbridled capitalism and the book traces how this has come home in full force in the COVID 19 pandemic The editors Larbi Sadiki and Layla Saleh use the term Arab risk society to refer to the short term and long term repercussions on Arab societies across the areas of socio economic inequality a revitalized state that is more securitized than ever before and the relentless democratic aspirations and civic political freedoms But the analyses are attuned to problem solving research The ethnographies of the pandemic included in this book investigate transformations and coping mechanisms within each country case study and provide an ethically informed research praxis that can respond to the manifold crises crashing down upon Arab states and societies
