Stage 1: Right After Eating

- Carbohydrates from food are converted into glucose (sugar) and released into the bloodstream.
- Blood sugar level rises.
- Insulin stimulates the conversion of glucose into glycogen as energy storage.

Stage 2: 3 Hours After Eating

- While insulin works, blood sugar level drops.
- In a non-fasting state, glycogen is used as energy.
- Excess glycogen that is not used is stored in the body as fats.

Stage 3: 9 Hours After Eating

- As blood sugar levels continue to drop, the body reacts by converting glycogen back into glucose and releasing it into the bloodstream.
- Fat is not yet used as an energy source, as there is still glucose and glycogen available.

Stage 4: 11 Hours After Eating

- Now that the stored glycogen has been almost used up, a metabolic switch is flipped.
- Fat is burned as it is used as energy.

Stage 5: 14-16 Hours After Eating

- As fat-burning continues, fatty acids are converted into ketones via ketosis.
- Ketones provide energy to the brain, heart and other vital organs.

Intermittent fasting is one of the best eating plans that you can go on and notice that we say eating plan rather than diet plan. This guidebook is going to delve deeper into intermittent fasting so you know exactly what to expect while you are on this fasting schedule. The good news is there is some freedom and you can pick and choose the type of fast that gives you the best results or that seems to be the easiest for your busy schedule. Some of the topics that we will explore in this guidebook include: Why does intermittent fasting work so much better than other diet plans?
