JEREMY M. CAMPBELL

An aerial photograph showing a large area of forest fire in the Brazilian Amazon. The dark green forest is partially obscured by thick smoke and fire, with bright orange and yellow flames visible in the lower right. The horizon shows more forest and a bright sky with scattered clouds.

Pdf Conjuring Property Speculation Environmental Brazilian:

Fixing the Climate Charles F. Sabel, David G. Victor, 2024-04-02 Can the world stop climate change? The prognosis is bleak. Most efforts to tackle the problem have focused on treaties that require virtually global consensus, yet meaningful consensus has been elusive because deep cuts in emissions are expensive and antagonize well-organized interests. Predictably, diplomacy has swung between gridlock and superficial agreements with little impact. After three decades of sustained negotiations on global warming, emissions have risen by one third. Stopping climate warming requires that they be cut essentially to zero. Sabel and Victor look to offer a case for optimism by proposing a different strategy to recast climate change as a problem best addressed piecemeal. Rather than seeking a grand global bargain, they argue that the problem should be broken down into local challenges. They call this concept experimentalist governance: massive simultaneous searches for local solutions that are scalable to the global level, with a focus not on marginal incentives for success but on penalties for repeated egregious failure. The authors show through a series of cases how regulators, firms, farms, and NGOs faced with penalty defaults are learning to solve some of the knottiest environmental problems; they then propose central mechanisms that could help monitor and review progress, establishing which experiments are working and establish new frontiers for experimentation. While the threat of impending catastrophe has understandably made debate about climate policy increasingly shrill and polarized, Sabel and Victor offer here a guide to institutional design that could finally lead to the politically and economically self-sustaining reductions in emissions that thirty years of global diplomacy has not delivered.

The Carbon Calculation Raquel Rodrigues Machaqueiro, 2023-03-07 Examines how climate science, the policy world, and neoliberalism have mutually informed and co-constituted each other in order to define the problem of climate change as one of market failure, a diagnosis that implicitly restricts the imaginable solutions and concomitant policy debates to ones about how to adjust, improve, or otherwise rationalize the market. This book traces the history through which politics and science have intertwined and informed each other in order to confine debates about how to tackle climate change in ways that pre-empt any possibilities other than market-based solutions. In tracing the emergence of a conceptual apparatus that has come to operationalize greenhouse gases in terms of a singular and simplified unit carbon that can be commodified and a logic that enables transaction of this unit on a global scale, this study offers insights into evolving novel forms of transnational governance and rationale for markets as governing tools.

Transforming Nations after the COVID-19 Pandemic Denis H. J. Caro, 2021-01-23 In 2020, the world is in the throes of the COVID-19 global pandemic, an epidemic the likes of which humankind has not experienced for decades. This book speaks to common and fundamental underlying issues that national communities face from a humanitarian and planetary systems perspective. From the globalization initiatives of the last decades, a dynamic and interconnected new planetary system order is emerging. This book underscores the need for decent, ethical, healthy, and just societies that enable individuals to reach full human potential. It explores the future directions of 12

Key Strategic Influencer KSI nations through 18 systemic factors that will shape the contours of future planetary governance this century Finally it proposes a nonconventional systems paradigm to humanitarian challenges Masters of the Lost
