Corpus-Based Studies of Translational Chinese in English-Chinese Translation Richard Xiao,Xianyao

Hu,2015-07-16 This book takes a corpus based approach which integrates translation studies and contrastive analysis to the study of translational language It presents the world's first balanced corpus of translational Chinese which in combination with a comparable native Chinese corpus provides a reliable empirical basis for a comprehensive account of the macro statistic lexical and grammatical features of translational Chinese in English to Chinese translation a significant contribution to Descriptive Translation Studies The research findings based on these two distinctly different languages have important implications for universal translation research on the European tradition New directions in corpus-based translation studies

Claudio Fantinuoli,Federico Zanettin,2015 Corpus based translation studies has become a major paradigm and research methodology and has investigated a wide variety of topics in the last two decades The contributions to this volume add to the range of corpus based studies by providing examples of some less explored applications of corpus analysis methods to translation research They show that the area keeps evolving as it constantly opens up to different frameworks and approaches from appraisal theory to process oriented analysis and encompasses multiple translation settings including indirect literary translation machine assisted translation and the practical work of professional legal translators The studies included in the volume also expand the range of application of corpus applications in terms of the tools used to accomplish the research tasks outlined Corpus-based Approaches to Translation and Interpreting

Gloria Corpas Pastor,Miriam Seghiri,2016 This volume represents a collection of theoretical and application orientated contributions which report advances in corpus based translation and interpreting studies The theoretical papers reflect the development of the discipline The applied studies discuss recent results in different areas such as training practice and the use of CAT tools

Corpus Methodologies Explained Meng Ji,Michael Oakes,Li Defeng,Lidun Hareide,2016-08-25 This book introduces the latest advances in Corpus Based Translation Studies CBTS a thriving subfield of Translation Studies which forms an important part of both translator training and empirical translation research Largely empirical and exploratory a distinctive feature of CBTS is the development and exploration of quantitative linguistic data in search of useful patterns of variation and change in translation With the introduction of textual statistics to Translation Studies CBTS has geared towards a new research direction that is more systematic in the identification of translation patterns and more explanatory of any linguistic variations identified in translations The book traces the advances from the advent of language corpora in translation studies to the new textual dimensions and shift towards a probability variation model Such advances made in CBTS have enabled in depth analyses of translation by establishing useful links between a translation and the social and cultural context in which the translation is produced circulated and consumed Translating and Comparing Languages: Corpus-based

Insights Sylviane Granger,Marie-Aude Lefer,2020-09-18 The present volume contains selected proceedings from the fifth edition of the Using Corpora in Contrastive and Translation Studies UCCTS international conference held at the University of

Louvain in September 2018. It brings together thirteen chapters that all make use of electronic comparable and/or parallel corpora to inform contrastive linguistics, translation theory, translation pedagogy, translation quality assessment, and multilingual terminology. The volume is structured in five thematic sections devoted to learner-focused descriptive translation studies, corpus use in translator training, studies of translated and edited language, contrastive linguistics and terminology. Together, the contributions in the volume reflect recent developments in corpus-based cross-linguistic studies such as the compilation and analysis of learner translation corpora to identify the typical features of learner-translated language and inform translator training; the comparative analysis of translation and other forms of mediated communication such as editing; the compilation of new multilingual corpora; and the analysis of under-researched linguistic phenomena such as punctuation. The volume also testifies to the growing cross-fertilization between contrastive linguistics and translation studies, both in terms of methodology (e.g. the combined use of different types of corpora and the exploration of corpus-driven methods and theory) (e.g. the role played by source language influence and cross-linguistic contrasts in translation). Corpus Triangulation

Sofia Malamatidou, 2017-09-20. Despite the recognition that corpus-based translation research would benefit from the triangulation of corpora, little has been done in the direction of actually employing combined corpus data and methods in the field. This book aims to address this gap by providing a much-needed detailed account of corpus triangulation, where different corpora (e.g. parallel, comparable, synchronic, diachronic) and/or different methods of analysis (e.g. qualitative, quantitative) can be used to increase our understanding of the phenomena where translation plays a key role. The book also demonstrates clearly how the proposed methodology can be fruitfully employed to investigate different linguistic features through its systematic application to empirical data. The first part of the book introduces the innovative framework for corpus triangulation, which is based on a new and comprehensive corpus typology, while the second part applies the methodological framework to two case studies examining the language of translation and the relationship between translation and language change. The book advances current translation studies in terms of methodology innovation and offers a model on which future studies investigating the network of relationships surrounding translated texts can be based. Translation-Driven Corpora

Federico Zanettin, 2014-04-08. Electronic texts and text analysis tools have opened up a wealth of opportunities to higher education and language service providers, but learning to use these resources continues to pose challenges to scholars and professionals alike. Translation-Driven Corpora aims to introduce readers to corpus tools and methods which may be used in translation research and practice. Each chapter focuses on specific aspects of corpus creation and use. An introduction to corpora and an overview of applications of corpus linguistics methodologies to translation studies is followed by a discussion of corpus design and acquisition. Different stages and tools involved in corpus compilation and use are outlined, from corpus encoding and annotation to indexing and data retrieval, and the various methods and techniques that allow end users to make sense of corpus data are described. The volume also offers detailed guidelines for the construction and analysis of multilingual corpora Corpus creation and use are illustrated through practical examples and case studies with each chapter outlining a set of tasks aimed at guiding researchers students and translators to practice some of the methods and use some of the resources discussed These tasks are meant as hands on activities to be carried out using the materials and links available in accompanying downloadable resources Suggested further readings at the end of each chapter are complemented by an extensive bibliography at the end of the volume Translation Driven Corpora is designed for use by teachers and students in the classroom or by researchers and professionals for self learning It is an invaluable resource for anyone interested in this fast growing area of scholarly and professional activity

Corpus-based Approaches to Contrastive Linguistics and Translation Studies, 2021-08-04 Corpus based Approaches to Contrastive Linguistics and Translation Studies presents readers with up to date research in corpus based contrastive linguistics and translation studies showing the high degree of complementarity between the two fields in terms of research methodology interests and objectives Offering theoretical descriptive and applied perspectives the articles show how translation and contrastive approaches to grammar lexis and discourse can be harmoniously combined through the use of monolingual bilingual and multilingual corpora and how contrastive information needs to inform translation research and vice versa The notion of contrastive linguistics adopted here is broad thus alongside comparisons of Malay English idioms and the French imparfait and its English equivalents there are articles comparing different varieties of French and sign language with spoken language This collection should be of interest to researchers in corpus linguistics contrastive linguistics and translation studies In addition the section on corpus based teaching applications will be of great value to teachers of translation and contrastive linguistics
