

1 Force Measurement – Student Guide

1.1 Overview

Two methods are available for quantitatively applying a well-defined load to different vertical wires and recording the corresponding displacements. The first will use some small weights suspended to the bottom of a long spring. Displacements for the same set of applications and removals are obtained by comparing the measured values of the displacement with the reference values brought on.

1.2 Procedure

The following procedure provides the steps for this experiment – a basic procedure. Please consult the other procedures for specific instructions regarding this experiment.

- Step 1: Verify the masses of the weights. The hanging masses are 200g.
- Step 2: Measure the lengths from the top of the wire.
- Step 3: Release the known load and
  - a. In the upper window, provide a 100g mass (displacement with load is 0.000000).
  - b. In the lower window, provide known displacement (e.g., 100g weight).
  - c. In the software, press the 100g mass (100g weight).
  - d. Press the 100g mass (100g weight).
  - e. Note – the software gives a range of 0.000000 to 0.000000. The software will give results when the 100g mass is released.
