Music In The Georgian Novel:

Music in the Georgian Novel Pierre Dubois, 2015 Music was an essential aspect of life in eighteenth century Britain and plays a crucial role in the literary strategies of Georgian novels This book is the first to investigate the literary representation of music in these works and explores the structural dramatic and metaphorical roles of music in novels by authors ranging from Richardson to Austen Pierre Dubois explores the meaning of musical scenes by framing them within contemporary cultural issues such as the critique of Italian opera or the theoretical shift from mimesis to the alleged autonomy and mystery of music Focusing upon both eighteenth century theories of music and the way specific musical instruments were perceived in the collective imagination Dubois suggests new interpretative perspectives for a whole range of novels of the Georgian era This book will be of interest to a wide readership interested not only in literature but also in music and cultural history at large

Edinburgh Companion to the Eighteenth-Century British Novel and the Arts M-C. Newbould, Jakub Lipski, 2024-07-31 The eighteenth century witnessed an explosion in new literary and creative forms that rapidly expanded and the relations between which became more complex This has typically been described as a period that ushered in the novel form the malleability of the concept of the novel genre and its history opens up intriguing possibilities for its role within wider networks of interartistic relationships in the period This Companion is concerned with how the fertile conversations that different artforms enjoyed in the long eighteenth century intersected fruitfully with the emergent shapes of prose fiction The essays comprising this volume range from the important overview to the case study providing readers with a unique opportunity to navigate a vast and sprawling terrain through engaging scholarly insights

Echoes from Georgia R. Curcumia, Joseph Jordania, 2010 This important book was compiled under the auspices of the Vano Sarajishvili Tbilisi State Conservatoire International Research Center for Traditional Polyphony in Tbilisi Georgia This collection is aimed to those who are interested in Georgian traditional polyphonic singing It contains seventeen works of seventeen authors both foreign and Georgian scholars written throughout the 20th and 21st centuries Eleven of these works had been published before but not in English and six of the articles were written by contemporary scholars for this collection Problems of the origins distribution ethno cultural interaction with other cultures identity scales harmony issues of vocal and instrumental polyphony are discussed in these articles Georgian traditional polyphony has long since become a symbol of the complexity that traditional musical culture can achieve in creating sophisticated forms of multi part singing In 2001 UNESCO proclaimed Georgian polyphonic singing a Masterpiece of the Oral and Intangible Heritage of Humanity Earlier in 1977 Georgian song Chakrulo was included among the very limited amount of information about the Earth and its diverse cultures that was launched into space Georgia is becoming one of the international centers of the study of the traditional polyphony
