

HISTORY OF THE PIANO - DETAILED TIMELINE

-500 BCE

Ancient Beginnings: The Monochord

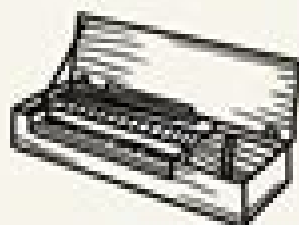

The piano's story starts with the monochord, a single-stringed tool invented by Pythagoras to study musical pitches and harmonics. It laid the groundwork for all stringed instruments.

15th-17th Century

The Harpsichord Reigns

With plucked strings and an elegant sound, the harpsichord ruled the courts and concert halls. But its lack of dynamics left composers yearning for more.

9th-14th Century

Medieval Era: Early Stringed Instruments

This era saw the birth of the psaltery and clavichord—humble ancestors of the piano. These stringed wonders paved the way for keyboard instruments as we know them.

1700

The Birth of the Pianoforte

Bartolomeo Cristofori invented the pianoforte, finally allowing players to control volume by touch. It was revolutionary—a whole new dynamic in music!

20th Century-Today

The Digital Revolution

Electronic and digital pianos brought portability, affordability, and endless customization. The piano continues to inspire in new, exciting ways!

19th Century

Iron Frames and Modern Innovations

To handle the tension of thicker, high-tension strings, iron frames were introduced. This innovation, coupled with other improvements, gave us the robust, expressive piano of today.
