Computers in Music Education Andrew R. Brown, 2007. Computers in Music Education addresses the question of how computer technologies might best assist music education. For current and preservice music teachers and designed as a development tool reference resource and basic teaching text it addresses pedagogical issues and the use of computers to aid production and presentation of students musical works. Written by a music educator and digital media specialist it cuts through the jargon to present a concise easy to digest overview of the field covering notation software MIDI sound creation downloading music posting personal MP3s for mass distribution. While there are many more technical books few offer a comprehensive understandable overview of the field. Computers in Music Education is an important text for the growing number of courses in this area.

Music, Technology, and Education Andrew King, Evangelos Himonides, 2016-06-10. The use of technology in music and education can no longer be described as a recent development. Music learners actively engage with technology in their music making regardless of the opportunities afforded to them in formal settings. This volume draws together critical perspectives in three overarching areas in which technology is used to support music education music production game technology musical creation experience and understanding. The fourteen chapters reflect the emerging field of the study of technology in music from a pedagogical perspective. Contributions come not only from music pedagogues but also from musicologists composers and performers working at the forefront of the domain. The authors examine pedagogical practice in the recording studio how game technology relates to musical creation and expression the use of technology to create and assess musical compositions and how technology can foster learning within the field of Special Educational Needs SEN. In addition the use of technology in musical performance is examined with a particular focus on the current trends and the ways it might be reshaped for use.
