Organizing Global Technology Flows Pierre-Yves Donzé, Shigehiro Nishimura, 2013-11-12 Research on the international transfer of technology in economics and management literature has primarily focused on the role of countries and that of companies in particular multinational enterprises MNEs Similarly economic and business historians have tended to view international technology transfer as a way for economically backward countries to acquire new technologies in order to catch up with more developed economies This volume provides a more in depth understanding of how the international transfer of technologies is organized and in particular challenges the core periphery model that is still dominant in the extant literature By looking beyond national systems of innovation and statistics on foreign trade patent registration and foreign direct investment the book sheds more light on the variety of actors involved in the transfer process including engineers entrepreneurs governments public bodies firms etc and on how they make use of a broad set of national and international institutions facilitating technology transfer Put differently the volume offers a better understanding of the complexity of global technology flows by examining the role and actions of the different actors involved By bringing together a number of original case studies covering many different countries over the period from the late 19th to the 21st century the book demonstrates how technology is being transferred through complex processes involving a variety of actors from several countries using the national and international institutional frameworks Multinationals, Technology and Competitiveness John H. Dunning, 2013 This book explores some aspects of the interface between technology competitiveness and the role of multinational enterprises in the world economy This group of essays stresses the role of asset creation and usage rather than reliance on natural factor endowments as a basis for national competitiveness and examines the role of multinational enterprises as vehicles for technological transfer and the efficient co ordination of economic activity across national boundaries Technology Transfer in International Business Tamir Agmon, Mary Ann Von Glinow, 1991-08-01 This important collection examines the means by which technological knowledge is transferred from countries that develop it to those who need it Written by well known authorities and derived from a conference held at the University of California and sponsored by IBEAR International Business Education Research Program the contributions focus on the transfer of technology from Western countries to Asian countries The International Transfer of Commercial Technology Leo Edwin Konz, 1980 Technology Transfer by Multinationals Hans Wolfgang Singer, Neelambar Hatti, Rameshwar Tandon, 1988 Contributed articles International Technology Transfer by Small and Medium-Sized Enterprises Peter J. Buckley, Jaime Campos, Eduardo White, 2014-01-14 The book is the culmination of a research effort which spanned all continents and involved a large number of research teams from both the industrialised and developing countries The book addresses a number of key issues related to technology transfer by small and medium sized enterprises most especially whether such companies are more effective transferors than larger transnational corporations A key aspect of the research was the fact that firms in source and host countries were matched to assure a degree of consistency in the firm coverage and their responses The Multinational Corporation and the Resource Cost of International Technology Transfer David J. Teece, 1976 Monograph on multinational enterprises comprising an economic analysis of the costs of international technology transfer discusses methodologies the use of statistical data and models the economic structure of the host country economic policy trade investment etc and includes case studies Bibliography pp 123 to 125 graphs references and statistical
