Impact of the 2013 ACC/AHA Cholesterol

Treatment Guidelines on Cholesterol Management Goals for Secondary Prevention Stephanie Yu (M.S. in Pharmaceutical Sciences), 2018 Background For patients who have atherosclerotic cardiovascular disease ASCVD statins are considered first line therapy for lowering low density lipoprotein cholesterol LDL C Previously reviewed literature demonstrates increased utilization of high intensity statins but unchanged LDL C levels after the 2013 American College of Cardiology ACC and the American Heart Association AHA guideline release regarding patients with ASCVD However comparative outcome studies have been inconclusive on ASCVD risk associated treatment practice decisions after the 2013 ACC AHA guideline implementation and comparisons of statin utilization have only been conducted with short term follow up 1-2 years post guideline release Objectives Purpose This study compared differences in achieving LDL C goals in patients with ASCVD before and after the 2013 ACC AHA guideline release Methods The retrospective cohort study used laboratory and claims data from December 2012 through December 2017 for patients 18 to 89 years of age cared for in the Baylor Scott & Peacock Hospital and clinics in the Baylor Scott & Peacock Health System. The study included patients with a history of ASCVD and those without a history of ASCVD but at high risk for ASCVD. The primary outcome was the percentage of patients achieving LDL C goals (≤ 100 mg/dL) at 12 months post-guideline release. Secondary outcomes included the percentage of patients achieving LDL C goals at 6 months post-guideline release and the percentage of patients achieving LDL C goals at 18 months post-guideline release.
