

*A WING—AND A GUN
—AND AN ENGINE BY NASH!*

HERE before your eyes is the swiftest, deadliest weapon man has yet launched into the skies...

A flying wing . . . a battery of cannon, and an engine from Nash . . .

The Navy's new Corsair—powered to outclimb, overtake and take apart any Jap or Nazi known.

Never before has so much supercharged power been packed into the nose of a fighter. 2,000 horses take it racing up to battle. A new engine designed by Pratt & Whitney for the stratosphere, it is being built in its entirety by Nash-Kelvinator—by the very same craftsmen who last year made refrigerators and automobiles for the homes and highways of America.

It's everybody's fight! Let's keep the battle rolling with War Bonds and scrap metal!

The sky is their province now—their goal, victory!

From them have come thousands of intricate propellers singing a song of vengeance over the flame-swept Ruhr.

And soon they will be turning over to the Navy great fleets of giant four-engine cargo-carrying flying boats to haul men and freight to battle.

They are fighting a war—these veterans of Nash-Kelvinator. Miles of production lines are their trenches. In their hands the lathes are like barrels of smoking guns—they ply their micrometers with the deadly accuracy of a bombardier. And at the rate they are pushing it out, it's bad news for Berlin and Tokyo!
