Dear Ms. Naughton,

I am writing in response to your recent ad in the Sunday New York Times. As a graduate of Impressive College with a dual degree in computer programming and theatre, I believe I would be the ideal Google employee. I have therefore enclosed my résumé for your perusal.

While there are many adept programmers and many charismatic people, thanks to my double major, I am that rare combination—both highly computer literate and at ease in all situations. My internship at the Globe Theatre, during which I both conducted tours and updated their website, has provided me with the kind of international experience that will make me even more valuable to Google, the most international of companies.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss your needs and my skills in more detail. I can be reached at the above address or at mary.smith@gmail.com. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,

Ordinary Writings, Personal Narratives Martyn Lyons, 2007 Historians have often assumed that the lives of the poor and illiterate can never be known because they have left little record of their existence. This book however will establish some of the main themes of a new field of historical study that of ordinary writings the improvised writings of the poor and the young.

Dynamic Business Letter Writing Dr. B.R. Kishore, Acts and Pauline Writings Watson E. Mills, Richard F. Wilson, 1997 Volume 7 of the Mercer Commentary on the Bible is comprised of the book of Acts and thirteen Pauline writings plus several appropriate articles from the Mercer Dictionary of the Bible. This convenient text is for the classroom and for anyone who wishes to focus on the study of Acts and the Pauline writings. Mercer University Press intends these texts to be available appropriate and helpful for Bible students both in and out of the classroom and indeed for anyone seeking guidance in uncovering the abundant wealth of the Scriptures. The Collected Writings of Thomas De Quincey: Literary theory and criticism Thomas De Quincey, 1890

from Antiquity to the Present Carol Poster, Linda C. Mitchell, 2007 Once nearly as ubiquitous as dictionaries and cookbooks are today letter writing manuals and their predecessors served to instruct individuals not only on the art of letter composition but also in effect on personal conduct. Poster and Mitchell contend that the study of letter writing theory which bridges rhetorical theory and grammatical studies represents an emerging discipline in need of definition. In this volume they gather the contributions of eleven experts to sketch the contours of epistolary theory and collect the historic and bibliographic materials from Isocrates to email that form the basis for its study.

Letter Writing Terttu Nevalainen, Sanna-Kaisa Tanskanen, 2007-01-01 The contributions in this book discuss letter writing from 1400 to 1800 and the material studied ranges from the late medieval Paston Letters and the correspondence between Sweden and the German Hanse to Early Modern English family letters and correspondence in natural history between England and North America in the eighteenth century. By bringing a set of corpus linguistic discourse analytic pragmatic and sociolinguistic approaches to bear on historical letter writing activity the articles both extend and complement the traditional letter writing research in the history of European languages which approaches the topic from a largely rhetorical perspective. The articles in this book were first published as a Special Issue of the Journal of Historical Pragmatics 5 2 2004 share a contextualised view of letters whether approached from the perspective of language contact social and discursive practices intertextuality audience design or linguistic politeness letters are analysed as part of their specific familial business or scientific network. Writing letters thus emerges as highly context sensitive social interaction.
