

How to create advertising that sells

by David Ogilvy

Ogilvy & Mather has created over $1,480,000,000 worth of advertising, and spent $4,900,000 tracking the results.

Here, with all the dogmatism of brevity, are 38 of the things we have learned.

1. The most important decision. We have learned that the effect of your advertising on your sales depends more on this decision than on any other: How should you position your product?

Should you position SCHWEPES as a soft drink — or as a mine?

Should you position DRYE as a product for dry skin or as a product which gets hands really clean?

The results of your campaigns depend less on how we write your advertising than on how your

We have been unable to establish any correlation whatever between words and sales.

At Ogilvy & Mather we now give an annual award for the campaign which contributes the most to sales.

Successful advertising sells the product without drawing attention to itself. It rivets the consumer's attention on the product.

Make the product the hero of your advertising.

8. Psychological segmentation. Any good agency knows how to position products for demographic segments of the market — for men, for young children, for farmers in the South, etc.

But Ogilvy & Mather has learned that it often pays to position products for psychological segments of the market.

Our Mercedes-Benz advertising is positioned to fit new conformists who scoff at "status symbols" and reject flamboyant appeals to vanity.

18. Don't bury news. It is easier to interest the consumer in a product when it is new than at any

But we never heard of an agency using medical background under a new business presentation.

19. Stand-ups. The stand-up pitch can be effective, if it is delivered with straightforward honesty.

20. Burst of singularity. The average consumer now sees 25,000 commercials a year; your dose.

Most of them slide off her memory like water off a duck's back.

Give your commercials a flourish of singularity, a hint that will stick in the consumer's mind. One such hint is the MONTAGNE DEVICE, or relevant symbol — like the crown in our commercials for Imperial Margarine.

21. Animation & cartoons. Less than five percent of television commercials use cartoons or animation. They are less persuasive than live commercials.

The consumer cannot identify herself with the character in the cartoon. And cartoons do not inspire belief.

However, Cartoons do, our partners in Los

34. Localize headlines. In local advertising it pays to include the name of the city in your headline.

35. Select your prospects. When you advertise for a product which is consumed by a certain group, it pays to "target" your advertising to that group. — MONTAGNE, 10-15-16

Ogilvy on Advertising in the Digital Age Miles Young, Ogilvy & Mather, 2017 An indispensable handbook for anyone who already works in advertising and a glimpse into the secrets of the world of advertising for outsiders Ogilvy on Advertising Summary and Analysis Adam Harrison, 2017-10-07 Ogilvy on Advertising was written in 1983 by David Ogilvy. He was a prominent advertiser who shared his knowledge about how to advertise, how to get a job in advertising, and described changes happening in the world of advertising at the time. One of the most important points of this book is that originality and creativity should not be sought after for its own sake; if a strategy works in advertising, then use it. Advertising is possibly one of the most stressful occupations and does not pay well unless you absolutely love it. The author is forthcoming about many mistakes he made in the advertising industry. Ogilvy opens by emphasizing that good advertising does not just simply make people admire your message for its creativity; it influences people to action. It's a simple adage yet easy for many advertisers to forget. The King of Madison Avenue Kenneth Roman, 2010-06-08 From the former CEO of Ogilvy & Mather, the first biography of advertising maverick David Ogilvy. Famous for his colorful personality and formidable intellect, David Ogilvy left an indelible mark on the advertising world, transforming it into a dynamic industry full of passionate creative individuals. This first-ever biography traces Ogilvy's remarkable life from his short-lived college education and undercover work during World War II to his many successful years in New York advertising. Ogilvy's fascinating life and career make for an intriguing study from both a biographical and a business standpoint. The King of Madison Avenue is based on a wealth of material from decades of working alongside the advertising giant, including a large collection of photos, memos, recordings, notes, and extensive archives of Ogilvy's personal papers. The book describes the creation of some of history's most famous advertising campaigns, such as The Man in the Hathaway shirt with his aristocratic eye patch, The Man from Schweppes, Commander Whitehead, the elegant bearded Brit introducing tonic water and Schweppes to the U.S., and perhaps the most famous automobile headline of all time: At 60 miles an hour, the loudest noise in this new Rolls Royce comes from the electric clock. Pablo Casals is coming home to Puerto Rico. Ogilvy said this campaign, which helped change the image of a country, was his proudest achievement. And his greatest, if less recognized, sales success: DOVE Creams Your Skin While You Wash. Roman also carries Ogilvy's message into the present day, showing the contemporary relevance of the bottom-line focus for which his business ventures are remembered and how this approach is still key for professionals in the modern advertising world.

Confessions of an Advertising Man David Ogilvy, 2004 Confessions of an Advertising Man is the distillation of all the successful Ogilvy concepts, tactics, and techniques that made this book an international bestseller. Regarded as the father of modern advertising, David Ogilvy created some of the most memorable advertising campaigns that set the standard for others.
