It covers statistical methods from chi-square through logistic regression and also quasi-experimental studies. At the same time, the book provides fundamental knowledge about research in general, such as planning data sources and uses, conceptual frameworks, and technical writing. The book presents relatively complex material in the simplest and clearest way possible, and through the use of real-world planning examples, makes the theoretical and abstract content of each chapter as tangible as possible. This book provides a comprehensive multidisciplinary and cutting-edge perspective on big data for regional science. Chapters contain a collection of research notes contributed by experts from all over the world with a wide array of disciplinary backgrounds. The content is organized along four themes: sources of big data, integration, processing, and management of big data, analytics for big data, and higher-level policy and programmatic considerations. As well as concisely and comprehensively synthesizing work done to date, the book also considers future challenges and prospects for the use of big data in regional science. Big Data for Regional Science provides a seminal contribution to the field of regional science and will appeal to a broad audience, including those at all levels of academia, industry, and government. Connecting Places, Connecting People Reena Tiwari, 2017-09-07

What is a better community? How can we reconfigure places and transport networks to create environmentally friendly, economically sound, and socially just communities? How can we meet the challenges of growing pollution, depleting fossil fuels, rising gasoline prices, traffic congestion, traffic fatalities, increased prevalence of obesity, and lack of social inclusion? The era of car-based planning has led to the disconnection of people and place in developed countries and is rapidly doing so in the developing countries of the Global South. The unfolding mega trend in technological innovation while adding new patterns of future living and mobility in the cities will question the relevance of face-to-face connections. What will be the glue that holds communities together in the future To build better communities and to build better cities we need to reconnect people and places Connecting Places Connecting People offers a new paradigm for place making by reordering urban planning principles from prioritizing movement of vehicles to focusing on places and the people who live in them Numerous case studies including many from developing countries in the Global South illustrate how this can be realized or fallen short of in practical terms Importantly citizens need to be engaged in policy development to connect with each other and with government agencies To measure the connectivity attributes of places and the success of strategies to meet the needs an Audit Tool is offered for a continual quantitative and qualitative evaluation
