a landmark academic collection that presents cutting edge interpretive perspectives on medieval religion for a wide academic audience drawing together thirty key scholars in the field from the United States the UK and Europe Notably the Handbook is arranged thematically and focusses on an analytical rather than narrative approach seeking to demonstrate the variety change and complexity of religion throughout this long period and the numerous different ways in which modern scholarship can approach it While providing a very wide ranging view of the subject it also offers an important agenda for further study in the field

The Western Perception of Islam between the Middle Ages and the Renaissance Marica Costigliolo, 2017-10-27 In the Middle Ages as Christian sources on the Islamic world show Muslim culture was perceived as extremely threatening there were many defenses of Christianity like the treatise on the mistakes of the followers of Allah This book shows through an analysis of the works of Nicholas of Cusa and of other authors that in the course of time this textual attitude was modified as European authors aimed to point out the Christian truth in comparison with the falsity of Islamic theology in order to reinforce Christian identity through the presupposition of its own absolute truth The apologetic aim was gradually replaced by a systematic comparison based on partial translations of the Qur'an The comparison with the other was also the basis for reinforcing identity in order to demonstrate the truth and consequently the supremacy of one's own theoretical position

Western Views of Islam in Medieval and Early Modern Europe M. Frassetto, D. Blanks, 1999-12-09 Western Views of Islam in Medieval and Early Modern Europe considers the various attitudes of European religious and secular writers towards Islam during the Middle Ages and Early Modern Period Examining works from England France Italy the Holy Lands and Spain the essays in this volume explore the reactions of Westerners to the culture and religion of Islam Many of the works studied reveal the hostility toward Islam of Europeans and the creation of negative stereotypes of Muslims by Western writers These essays also reveal attempts at accommodation and understanding that stand in contrast to the prevailing hostility that existed then and in some ways exists still today

Christians and Muslims in the Middle Ages Michael Frassetto, 2019-11-12 The conflict and contact between Muslims and Christians in the Middle Ages is among the most important but least appreciated developments of the period from the seventh to the fourteenth century Michael Frassetto argues that the relationship between these two faiths during the Middle Ages was essential to the cultural and religious developments of Christianity and Islam even as Christians and Muslims often found themselves engaged in violent conflict Frassetto traces the history of those conflicts and argues that these holy wars helped create the identity that defined the essential characteristics of Christians and Muslims The polemic works that often accompanied these holy wars was important Frassetto contends because by defining the essential evil of the enemy Christian authors were also defining their own beliefs and practices Holy war was not the only defining element of the relationship between Christians and Muslims during the Middle Ages and Frassetto explains that everyday contacts between Christian and Muslim leaders and scholars generated more peaceful relations and shaped the literary intellectual and religious culture that defined medieval and even modern Christianity and Islam      Muslim Perceptions of Christianity Hugh Goddard,1996      Christians and Muslims in Early Medieval Italy Luigi Andrea Bertó,2019-11-27 In the early Middle Ages Italy became the target of Muslim expansionist campaigns The Muslims conquered Sicily ruling there for more than two centuries and conducted many raids against the Italian Peninsula During this period however Christians and Muslims were not always at war trade flourished and travel to the territories of the other was not uncommon By examining how Muslims and Christians perceived each other and how they communicated this book brings the relationship between Muslims and Christians in early medieval Italy into clearer focus showing that the followers of the Cross and those of the Crescent were in reality not as ignorant of one another as is commonly believed      Index Islamicus ,2001      Perceptions of Islam in the Christendoms Nasir Khan,2006 This highly readable history investigates how starting in the eighth century Christian theologians and authors laid the foundations of an anti Islamic tradition that was to shape the relations between the Christian and the Muslim countries right up to the present day Perceptions of Islam in the Christendoms gives a fascinating account of how Christian dogmas developed with the theological presuppositions of Christian writers and polemicists combating the new rival faith of Islam The author focuses on the polemical views against Islam in the Orient and the West extending over a period of thirteen centuries while at the same time placing the whole discussion in a wider cultural and political context This clear and concise book offers a unique overview and insights into the Western approaches to the Islamic world It clearly shows the nature of the problem thus far in history and speaks directly to scholars a wider general audience and the whole of the Western world      Western Views of Islam in the Middle Ages Richard William Southern,1962 Lezingen gehouden voor de Harvard universiteit in 1961      The Religions of the Book M. Dimmock,A. Hadfield,2008-04-03 This is the first study to explore the relationship between Christianity Judaism and Islam in the Early Modern period Contributors debate the complicated terms in which these Religions of the Book interacted The collection illuminates this area of European culture from the late Middle Ages to the end of the Seventeenth century      Cluny and the Muslims of La Garde-Freinet Scott G. Bruce,2015-11-05 In the summer of 972 a group of Muslim brigands based in the south of France near La Garde Freinet abducted the abbot of Cluny as he and his entourage crossed the Alps en route from Rome to Burgundy Ultimately the abbot was set free but the audacity of this abduction outraged Christian leaders and galvanized the will of local lords Shortly thereafter Count William of Arles marshaled an army and succeeded in wiping out the Muslim stronghold The monks of Cluny kept this tale alive over the next century Scott G Bruce explores the telling and retelling of this story focusing on the representation of Islam in each account and how that representation changed over time The culminating figure in this study is Peter the Venerable one of Europe s leading intellectuals and abbot of Cluny from 1122 to 1156 who commissioned Latin translations of Muslim texts such as the Qur an Cluny and the Muslims of La Garde Freinet provides us with an unparalleled opportunity to examine Christian perceptions of Islam in the Crusading era      The Journal of Medieval and Early Modern Studies ,2000      Muslim

Perceptions of Other Religions Jacques Waardenburg, 1999-08-19 Since its inception Islam and its civilization have been in continuous relationships with other religions cultures and civilizations including not only different forms of Christianity and Judaism inside and outside the Middle East Zoroastrianism and Manicheism Hinduism and even Buddhism but also tribal religions in West and East Africa in South Russia and in Central Asia including Tibet The essays collected here examine the many texts that have come down to us about these cultures and their religions from Muslim theologians and jurists travelers and historians and men of letters and of culture
